Slight Opposition To Bus Application At Public Hearing

Residents of Ponckhockie Object to Replacing Trolley Cars With Twenty Minute Bus Service—Common Council Not Yet in Position to Act on Application.

A delegation of residents of the Ponckhockie section of the city, headed by A. Ray Powley and Eugene B. Carey, appeared at the public hearing held by the common council Tuesday evening on the petition of the Kingston Transportation Company to substitute busses for trolley cars, and objected to any change being made as they were satisfied with the present service given that section of the city by the trolley road. There were no other objections made to the proposed change from trolleys to busses.

G. Burton TeBow, general manager of the trolley road, in reply to questions stated that it was proposed to give five to ten minute service on the Broadway bus line and twenty minute service to the Ponckhockie section of the city. The bus line to Ponckhockie would be an extenson of the present Hasbrouck avenue bus line service. During the months of July and August when travel on the Day Line steamers was the heaviest, he believed that out of town bus lines should be afforded an opportunity to run through to Kingston Point to pck up passengers for out of town.

Mr. TeBow said the bus service in the Ponckhockie section would be maintained on a strictly twenty minute schedule and that it would afford that section of the city good service.

Wants Broadway Bus Line.

Eugene B. Carey, speaking for himself and other residents of Ponckhockie, said that there were five hundred homes in that section of the city and he believed that the Broadway bus line should run through to Kingston Point.

Good Service Now.

A. Ray Powley said Ponckhockie was getting better trolley service now than ever before and that residents there were satisfied with the present service. Twenty minute bus service would not do.

"We are getting good service now, why change it?" asked Mr. Powley. He protested against any change either in service or in fares.

Operate Seven Busses Saturdays.

Alderman Henry Fox, who represents Ponckhockie in the common council, asked Mr. TeBow how many busses would be operated on the Broadway bus line and was informed that the company expected to operate from four to seven busses. The seven busses would be operated on Saturdays when travel was heaviest.

In reply to further questions by the alderman, Mr. TeBow stated that three busses would operate over the Ponckhockie route, and if they could not take care of the service, four busses would operate.

Considered Busses for Year.

Mr. Powley asked Mr. TeBow how long he had considered busses in preference to trolley cars, and Mr. TeBow stated "For a year".

Mr. Powley then read a paragraph from a letter written by Mr. TeBow when bus versus trolley first came up, in which Mr. TeBow wrote that busses would not afford as good service as trolley cars.

Mr. TeBow replied that was three years ago and conditions had changed considerably during that time.

Asked About 10 Cent Fare.

Attorney Arthur B. Ewig asked about the proposed ten cent fare.

County Judge Joseph M. Fowler, attorney for the trolley road, said that the fixing of the rate of fare was up to the Public Service Commission. No attempt had been made by the trolley road to hide the fact that if it was allowed to substitute busses for trolleys it would petition the Public Service Commission for a ten cent fare, and that fact was set forth in the petition filed with the common council.

Favored Zoning Fare.

Alderman O'Reilly of the Ninth ward said he was in favor of a zoning fare. He said he thought the council was entitled to know what fare would be charged if permission were granted to change from trolleys to busses.

Judge Fowler stated that was up to the Public Service Commission and the granting of the petition by the common council did not prohibit the city from appearing before the Public Service Commission and opposing an increased fare.

A $300,000 Expenditure.

Mr. TeBow said that making the change from trolleys to busses would involve the expenditure of $300,000, and that the trolley road would not operate busses under the present fare.

Alderman O'Reilly insisted that the council should know about the fare that would be charged before action was taken.

Judge Fowler replied that the application made to the council stated that the trolley road would apply for ten cent fare but nobody knew if it would be granted by the Public Service Commission. He again made it plain that the city had the right to appear before the Public Service Commission and oppose any increase in fares.

Hearing is Closed.

C. Ray Everett, president of the common council, stated that if no one else desired to be heard the hearing would be closed. The matter was in the hands of the common council and as several matters had not been ironed out as yet the council was not in a position at this time to take any action.

The hearing was then closed and the common council went into regular session which lasted until nearly midnight. Other matters taken up will be found elsewhere.

Zone Ordinance Adopted Tuesday By City Fathers

Gas Station Wins Victory Over Albany Avenue Residents When Council Votes to Place Albany Avenue Triangle in Business Zone—City Now Has Workable Ordinance.

The zoning committee of the common council, which has been at work for some time drafting a zoning ordinance to replace the present ordinance, submitted a new ordinance at the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening and recommended its adoption. The ordinance was adopted after Alderman Clare had introduced an amendment that the Albany avenue triangle, which has been the scene of contention for some time, be placed entirely in the business zone and so marked on the zoning maps. This was carried by a vote of 10 to 3 after the question had been hotly argued by those favoring the proposition and property owners on Albany avenue who objected.

Corporation Counsel H. H. Flemming, who had drafted the new ordinance, said its adoption meant that the city would now have a workable ordinance that provided for the expansion and growth of the city and not restricting it, as some had suggested at hearings held by the zoning committee.

Cahill Objected to Change.

After Alderman Clare had moved to amend the zoning map in reference to the block known as the Albany avenue triangle and which included Broadway, East St. James street and Albany avenue, Attorney John T. Cahill asked for the privilege of the floor and vigorously opposed changing that section from residential to business.

He said the only reason it was wanted to make it a business zone was because it was proposed to erect a gas station on the narrow end of the triangle where East St. James street and Albany avenue meet. He said the property was bought with the knowledge that it was in the residential district, and that there was no public demand for a gas station at that point as there were several stations within a stone's throw of the proposed station. He said he appeared for W. C. Shafer of Albany avenue.

Attorney Connelly Also Objects.

Attorney Arthur C. Connelly, who represented Charles L. McBride of Albany avenue, opposed changing the district from residential to business. He said that the council should consider the interests of property owners in the locality.

William Harp Speaks.

William Harp, the contractor, who expects to erect the gas station, spoke in favor of the change, stating that three-fourths of the residents in the vicinity favored a gas station. He said he had purchased the property and that it would improve conditions by carrying out his plans. Those objecting could have purchased the property and could have gotten it much cheaper than he, but they had not done so.

Edmunds Frees His Mind.

Vincent Edmunds of Port Ewen, who owns an apartment house on East St. James street, opposite the proposed gas station said that if the residents in that vicinity wanted the triangle for a city park instead of a gas station he would chip in $500 and asked how much they would chip in to purchase the property. He said that the corner had been a disgrace to the vicinity for years, and now that it was intended to improve it, objection was made by residents.

Placed in Business Zone.

Alderman Clare's motion that the zoning map be changed to place the triangle in the business zone and also the Edmunds apartment house on East St. James street, was adopted by a vote of 10 to 3.

The zoning ordinance was then adopted unanimously.

Coolidge Angles For Gamier Fish

Superior, Wis., Aug. 8 (AP).—With his mastery over the Brule river trout proved, President Coolidge now has the opportunity to show his angling mettle with one of the gamest and hardest fish to catch—the Montana greylings.

Fifty greylings have been let out into the Brule from the hatchery on Cedar Island Lodge estate, where they were raised, to see if Mr. Coolidge should have the good luck and the skill to land one.

The greylings are slender fish, trimmer than trout, and with a very small and tender mouth. In addition they are very game, requiring generally lengthy and delicate playing after hooking to avoid tearing their mouths.

Council Tables Sunday Movies For Two Weeks

Alderman Clare Introduced Resolution Calling for Referendum to Be Voted On at November Election—Matter Finally Tabled for Two Weeks.

The Sunday movie question, which was defeated two years ago by the voters of Kingston, was brought forward by Alderman Leo Clare of the Eighth ward at the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening when he introduced a resolution that the following proposition be submitted to the voters at the next general election in November:

"Shall the common council of Kingston pass an ordinance authorizing the exhibition of motion pictures on the first day of the week after 2 o'clock in the afternoon," and moved that it be referred to the laws and rules committee and a recess taken for ten minutes to allow the committee to report.

The proposition was defeated in committee but the committee's majority report was rejected by the common council and the question of voting on the minority report favoring the proposition was laid on the table for two weeks.

"An Insult to Voters"

Alderman Ray Haines of the Second ward when the matter was brought up said that the question had been settled fairly and squarely two years ago and that it was an "insult to the voters to bring it up again at this time."

"Should Be Left to Public"

Alderman Fox of the Fifth ward was of the opinion that it was a question that should be left up to the public to settle.

Motion to Adjourn Lost

A hot discussion followed and at its height Alderman Burger moved to adjourn, which was promptly seconded by Aldermen Hull and Haines.

Alderman Clare objected on the ground that his motion to refer the matter to the laws and rules committee was before the council and had not been acted on.

President C. Ray Everett ruled that a motion to adjourn was always in order under the rules that governed the council meetings and the Burger motion to adjourn was put to a vote and lost.

Two Committee Reports

Alderman Clare's motion that the matter be referred to the laws and rules committee and a recess of ten minutes be taken to give the committee an opportunity to report, was adopted.

The laws and rules committee, consisting of President Everett and Aldermen Relyea, Haines, Clare and Molyneaux, then retired and returned later with two reports.

The majority report rejecting the referendum was submitted by President Everett and Aldermen Relyea and Haines. The minority report was signed by Aldermen Clare and Molyneaux favoring its adoption.

Motion to Table Lost.

Alderman O'Reilly moved that the report of the laws and rules committee be laid on the table.

Alderman Dressel said he thought the public should first be heard on the proposition and for that reason he seconded the motion.

On roll call the O'Reilly motion to table was lost.

Reject Report.

Alderman Burger then moved that the report of the committee, which was the majority report, be adopted.

Those voting in favor of the majority report were Aldermen Dressel, Haines, Hermance, Burger, Relyea and Hull; those voting to reject the report were Aldermen Molyneaux, Fox, Mann, Ostrander, Clare, O'Reilly and Reilly.

Matter Finally Tabled.

Alderman O'Reilly said he wanted to make it plain that he thought the public should be heard in the matter and for that reason moved that the minority report be tabled for two weeks. His motion was seconded by Alderman Hermance.

As there appeared to be no desire to put the matter to a vote, the resolution was tabled for two weeks, to which time the council adjourned.

It was nearly midnight before the council session closed.

BANNON COMPANY AWARDED CONTRACT FOR PENNEY STORE

The L. F. Bannon Plumbing, Heating and Contracting Company of 16-18 Andrew street has been awarded the contract for installing plumbing, heating, roofing, skylights, metal ceilings and sheet metal work in the new J. C. Penney Company's store on Wall and Fair streets. This is the largest contract awarded in the city since the city hall contract was awarded and which the Bannon Company is also doing.

Reed Maintains Lead.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 8 (AP).—Clyde M. Reed of Parsons, strongly backed by farm organizations, maintained his substantial lead for the Republican nomination for governor when returns were tabulated early today from approximately one-third of the precincts in Kansas.

Hold Up Armored Car.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 8 (AP).—Four bandits in two automobiles held up an armored motor car here early today, hurled gas bombs into the interior, disabling the guards, and escaped with $20,000.

Leo the Lion, Motion Picture Star, Will Roar

Most Famous Lion in the World to Visit Kingston Thursday Afternoon and Spend the Night Here—Welcomed by Mayor Dempsey, Dinner Guest of Henry Beck, Reception at Broadway Theatre, Will Spend Night at Central Garage.

Leo, the Metro Goldwyn lion, most famous member of the family of the King of Beasts, motion picture star in the animal world and hero of an airplane wreck in the wild and woolly west, when he escaped with his life from the wreckage of an airplane that crashed at Tonto Basin, Arizona, some time ago, will visit Kingston on Thursday afternoon and spend the night in town.

LEO, The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer LION, now on world tour.

Leo is coming here from Albany in his palatial cage, mounted on a Reo truck, and will be met by Mayor Dempsey at the city line and welcomed to the city. It is probable that—to a certain extent—the freedom of the city will be extended to Leo, so long as he remains in his cage and refrains from attempting to eat any of Kingston's more prominent citizens. As Leo is too intelligent to invite an attack of indigestion, no prominent citizen need fear being eaten in any event. Then, too, Leo is a perfect gentleman and appreciative of hospitality.

Leo will arrive at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon and after being officially welcomed by the mayor will be escorted to the Broadway Theatre and thence will be paraded all over the city in order that he may be shown the manifold beauties and attractions of Kingston as a place of residence and a site for factories.

CAPT. FRANK PHILLIPS, TRAINER OF LEO M-G-M LION ON WORLD TOUR

At 4 o'clock Leo will, in gratitude for this reception, give a free performance in front of the Broadway Theatre. At 4:30 he will retire from labor to refreshment and will visit Beck's Market, on Broadway, where he will partake of an early dinner served to him alfresco in the street so that all may see. At 7 o'clock, refreshed by his dinner and after a nap to promote digestion, Leo will again hold a reception and give a free show in front of the Broadway Theatre.

After this appearance, Leo will retire to his downy couch in the Central Garage, Broadway at St. James street, where he will spend the night, leaving early next morning for the next city to be favored by his presence.

Those who want to see how Leo shines as a moving picture actor may gratify their desires by visiting the Broadway Theatre Friday and Saturday, afternoon or evening, where Leo stars as "Rinty of The Desert" in the great picture, "Rin Tin Tin".

THREE ARRESTS HERE FOR PUBLIC INTOXICATION

Three arrests were made in the city Tuesday for public intoxication. Steve Schick, a Pole from Bridgeport, Conn., was picked up drunk on Chambers street by Officer Camp. He had been in court about two weeks ago for the same offense and today was sentenced to twenty days in jail.

Raymond Eltinge, 21, of Jansen avenue, was found lying intoxicated on the post office steps Tuesday night by Officer Doss. He paid a $5 fine.

Charles Johnson, a negro, who came here with the Wild West Show on Monday, was found intoxicated on North Front street. He was fined $5.

Hurricane on Florida Coast Isolates Towns

Only Few of Coast Towns Able to Communicate With Outside World as Storm Sweeps Northward—Damage Undetermined.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 8 (AP).—A [illegible] which took its way up the Florida east coast line today, using its 75-mile an hour velocity to cut up communication lines and imperil shipping.

Blocked off from the Atlantic by high pressure areas, the storm gathered its fury for an assault against the unprotected coast at the Palm Beaches yesterday and last night and at dawn broke it was whipping the coast line between 50 and 75 miles to the northward.

Meanwhile two steamers were endangered by mountainous seas. One of them, the Mallory Line Algonquin, Galveston to New York, with 200 passengers, had lost its bearings and was struggling to keep from running aground off Jupiter, 18 miles north of West Palm Beach.

The Lempira, flying the Honduran flag, New York to Porto Cortez, was helpless in a heavy sea. The United Fruit Company steamer Castilla stood by throughout the night.

Only a few of the coast towns between Fort Pierce and Palm Beach were able to communicate with the outside world this morning.

Although patched up telegraphic communication was maintained at intervals through the storm area, it was impossible to check the damage.

Titusville and Daytona Beach, farther north toward Jacksonville, reported no unusual conditions last night, but expected a hard blow some time today.

Relief Organizations Prepared

Emergency relief organizations along the east coast were prepared to act on a moment's notice, although no appeals had been made from any of the towns in the danger zone. Telegraph and telephone company linesmen were restoring communication between West Palm Beach and Miami, to use for relay through to northern Florida over the one or two remaining trunk circuits.

Damage Undetermined.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 8 (AP).—With the tropical storm that has been raging on the Florida east coast centered near Fort Pierce, residents of that city were reported to be barricaded in their houses early today when a brief report was received from that section shortly before all communication was cut off.

Seventy-five mile winds sweeping the streets made it extremely dangerous for anyone to venture out, particularly because of flying debris, the report said. Damage was undetermined but was expected to be heavy.

The hurricane stormed the coast last night between the palm beaches and cocoa when the tropical disturber resumed its travels after having remained stationary for several hours in the Atlantic Ocean about sixty miles off Palm Beach.

Palm Beaches Swept.

The Palm Beaches were swept by a sixty mile gale for about three hours but relief came when the wind shifted to the south and appeared to be abating.

The wind whipped up huge waves which poured over the ocean boulevard, threatening the Beach drive. Trees were uprooted in the two cities, small buildings damaged and signs and awnings blown away.

Fears were felt here for the Havana Special, of the Florida East Coast Railroad. This train, southbound from New York to Miami, had not been heard from since early last night when it was 45 miles north of Fort Pierce. It was due in Miami at 2:10 o'clock this morning.

Communication with practically all points in the storm area was disrupted.

Steamer Algonquin Safe.

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Mallory Line steamer Algonquin, bound for New York from Galveston with 200 passengers, is safe and has hove to in the Florida Straits to ride out the storm, said a wireless message from the ship to the line's New York offices today.

The radio read:

"Hove to in Florida Strait. Was blowing hurricane. Everything O. K."

MOUNT VESUVIUS AGAIN IN ERUPTION

Naples, Italy, Aug. 8 (AP).—An eruption of Mount Vesuvius, likely to continue for several days, is reported by the observatory on the mountain.

A mouth of fire opened on the southwest side of the crater and a large quantity of highly-liquified lava poured forth rapidly, forming a lake about 75 meters in diameter.

A small crew blew off about 30 meters of its top which was thrown a considerable distance.

It was felt that there was no cause for alarm in the surrounding countryside.

THREE BUILDINGS IN PORT HENRY DESTROYED.

Port Henry, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—Fire in the little mining village of Witherbee, six miles from here, completely destroyed three store and apartment buildings and partially wrecked a fourth today. Fire Chief Albert Davis estimated damage at more than $150,000.

The blaze started in a candy store and for a time threatened the entire village. A baby was overcome by smoke, but revived. No one was seriously injured.

Submarine F-14 Raised; Crew of 27 Found Dead In Calvary Church

Entire Italian Crew Died at Their Posts of Acid Fumes or Were Drowned—Struck by Propeller—Watertight Compartments Held.

Rome, Aug. 8 (AP).—Poisoned by acid fumes or [illegible] rush of water, the crew of the Italian Submarine F-14, sank in a collision early Monday morning in the upper Adriatic, died to a man at their posts, apparently with fortitude and resignation.

The submarine was raised to the surface last night after 31 hours of desperate labor by divers, who worked hour after hour to attach an air pipe to the sunken vessel and to fasten steel cables in order that she might be lifted to the surface.

Twenty-seven men perished. First reports received by the naval authorities indicated that there were 32 men aboard, but a check of the bodies today revealed that four of the crew had remained ashore for reasons which have not yet been ascertained. Included among the victims were two officers, Captain Weil and Commander Fasuolo.

Weil and Fasuolo were found to have been at their posts of command in the Conning tower, while the remaining members of the crew were all found at their stations. There were no visible signs of panic and the crew evidently had hoped till the last that they would be saved, only to succumb to the fumes from their electric battery room.

Struck by Propeller.

Inspection of the hull showed that the submersible was not rammed by the Destroyer Giuseppi Missori as first thought, but was struck by its propeller. This caused a great gaping gash near the stern.

Those in the immediate vicinity met instant death by drowning. The watertight compartments for a time saved the lives of the remainder until they died of poisoning.

It was found that all of the watertight compartments held till the end despite the fear that they might yield under the terrific pressure to which the submarine was subjected. In view of the extraordinary speed with which the submersible was raised, it is felt that some of the crew would certainly have been saved had it not been for the poisonous fumes from the battery room.

The F-14 was towed into Pola this morning.

Remarkable Performance

Naval experts in Rome believe that the speed with which the rescue operations were carried out, despite the fact that none of the crew was saved, represented a remarkable performance. Throughout the work divers were handicapped by raging seas and heavy winds. It was necessary first to find divers capable of descending to the 120 foot depth where the submarine lay, then to locate the submarine by means of seaplanes and to rush pontoons and other necessary apparatus to the spot before the rescue work could even begin.

Operations Hazardous

When the submarine finally was found and everything was in readiness for the work, the unfavorable weather conditions which began about that time made operations extremely hazardous. After much toil the divers were able to attach an air tube to the submarine and fresh air was pumped into the F-14. The quantity thus pumped in apparently was insuniclent to keep the men alive and the reasons for this are now being investigated.

This done, the divers fixed the steel cables to the hull and the submarine was gradually lifted.

As for the poisoning of the crew, it is considered probable that the submarine went to the bottom on an uneven keel which caused the sulphuric acid in the electric batteries to pour out. The watertight compartments, although successfully withstanding the terific pressure of the water, permitted slight infiltrations of sea water and this, mixing with the sulphuric acid, produced poisonous fumes which rapidly killed the whole crew.

Democrats Meet, Take No Action

The chairmen of the Democratic county committees of the Twenty-seventh Congressional district, which includes the counties of Ulster, Greene, Columbia, Schoharie and Sullivan, held an unofficial meeting at the Hotel Stuyvesant Tuesday for the purpose of talking over and selecting a candidate for Congress. Nothing definite was the outcome of the meeting.

REMOVING SILT FROM SAUGERTIES CREEK

A "sand sucker" is removing the silt and other accumulation from the mouth of the Saugerties creek. Sand bars will be removed from various portions of the creek. Approximately 50 men are employed on the sand remover and they are being housed on a large barge.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Eckert, 79 Henry street, a daughter, Joan, at City of Kingston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Williams, 135 Gross street, a daughter, Carolyn Frances, at City of Kingston Hospital.

Gov. Smith Wants To Face Straton

Where Minister Made The Charge That He Was The Deadliest Foe In America Today of The Forces of Moral Progress and True Political Wisdom.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—Governor Smith has thrown down the gage of battle to critics of his public records, and has embraced in his challenge those who speak from the pulpit.

Singling out to bear the brunt of his counter offensive a Baptist minister of New York—Dr. John Roach Straton, the Democratic presidential nominee has called on him to repeat, in his presence, and in Straton's church, a statement the clergyman made last Sunday to his congregation that as a public man Smith "is the deadliest foe in America today of the forces of moral progress and true political wisdom." The governor requested full opportunity to reply.

Straton announced last night he would accept the challenge, so today it appeared that a debate between a presidential nominee and a minister of the Gospel in a house of worship—something new in political campaigns might be in the offing.

The governor in a letter to the Rev. Straton yesterday called him to task for his declaration of Sunday and suggested that he and the minister meet face to face during the Labor Day week in the minister's church, Calvary Baptist.

"I will meet you, if you choose, to conduct the meeting by question and answer," said Smith. "I will be ready to answer any question you may put to me which, in your opinion, will in any degree tend to justify your remarks."

Suggests Madison Square Garden.

In a counter proposal Dr. Straton suggested that he and the governor argue things out in Madison Square Garden or some other large auditorium, and also that they embark on a joint debating tour through the south.

The governor's reaction to these proposals had not been disclosed today, although it was regarded as certain he would reject both. His friends pointed out that even if he was so minded he could not set out on a series of debates without upsetting plans for stumping for the presidency and they predicted that he would insist on meeting his antagonist in the church where the original charge was made.

Never Permit It To Go Unchallenged.

In his letter to Dr. Straton, whose name frequently appears on the front pages of Metropolitan newspapers, Smith, referring to the minister's declaration of Sunday, said: "I do not know why you should make a statement of that kind, but I do know that I will never permit it to go unchallenged."

Declaring that he had spent 25 years in the service of the state of New York, the governor added:

"I do not feel that I should charge you with making this statement for any political purpose, as it was made in a church devoted to the teachings of Christ, one of which was 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor'."

Governor's Assault Unexpected.

The governor's assault on the Baptist minister came unexpectedly. Newspaper men assigned to cover him here had been on the lookout instead for a reply of some sort to the charges of William Allen White, the Kansas editor, who last week levelled his guns at Smith's legislative record with relation to the saloon, commercialized vice and gambling, later, however, withdrawing his charges regarding gambling and vice.

Whether the Straton letter, so far as the Democratic nominee is concerned, will suffice as an answer also to White, who has gone to Europe, or whether there still is something on the fire that will explode in the Kansan's direction, remained undisclosed today.

Delving Into Legislative Record.

The governor is carefully assessing details of the White attack, and is going straight to the legislative record, which shows in black and white his stand on various proposals as an assemblyman, for his ammunition. A desk in his private office is covered with official volumes, recording past proceedings of the New York legislature, and an overflow surrounds it on the floor, each book with slips of paper marking the places to look for quick reference.

In the event the governor should decide to reply to White, it is expected here to be more than an answer. Smith's friends are of the opinion that he would analyze his attitude toward social legislation in sweeping fashion, probably covering more ground than that embraced by the White charges.

As he is surveying the record and making a decision as to a possible reply to the editor, the governor also is under the compulsion of whipping his acceptance speech into shape. His notification comes two weeks from tonight, and he wants to put the finishing touches on his address by this time next week. He still has a long way to go.

Business Certificate Filed.

Harry Banks of 296 Clinton avenue has certified to the Ulster county clerk that he is conducting a business in Kingston under the name and style "Banks & Roder," being successor to Harry Banks and Aaron Roder.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Residents of a large apartment house in Brooklyn are prepared to appear en masse against Philip Norick when his case is called in court. In a gray, humid dawn, Philip roamed through the building clinking bells and rousing whole families in the effort to borrow a match.

Rzeszow, Poland—Probably the record trek "over the hills to the poor house" was staged when twelve special trains took 21,000 defendants in a bankruptcy suit to trial. They were members of a defunct cooperative society.

Philadelphia—The assertion that an image could be seen in the flame of a street lamp drew such crowds that the city authorities dismantled the lamp.

New York—Alma Mater, Columbia University's maternal statue in front of the library, has lost her gold crown. A reward of $25 and no questions asked is stated in campus notices.

Cornwall, N. Y.—At the age of 94, Mrs. I. N. Voris is starting in an automobile over the honeymoon route to California she followed 67 years ago.

Evanston, Ill.—Research chemists are just extra long shot gamblers, according to one of them. One winning was 2,800 per cent and it wasn't considered so very unusual.

New York—Harrison Williams, Wall street financier, is one of those fellows who likes to get to work (and away) in a hurry. His latest commuting facility between the street and his Long Island home is the $75,000 speedboat Whim III which turned up 53 miles an hour in initial tests.

London—The world may be growing smaller but Los Angeles still is "too remote" to be considered for the next Olympics, asserts J. F. Wadmore, manager of the British team.

Normal, Ill.—Some first voters in the coming elections may celebrate with cigarettes legitimately purchased for the first time since their birth. The 23 year old ban on that type of smokes has been lifted by the city council.

WEST SAUGERTIES.

West Saugerties, Aug. 8.—The Paul family of Richmond Hill, L. I., are spending their vacation in their summer home, the former Larson place.

Mrs. S. P. Cole has rented her cottage to Mrs. Neumeyer for two weeks.

Miss Rosemary Daly of Kingston and mother, Mrs. Rose Daly of this place, are spending two weeks in Buffalo with Mrs. Daly's daughter, Mrs. Fitzgerald.

It Was "Blind Man's Luck"

By HELEN R. BARTON

(Copyright.)

"YOU are making a mistake, my boy," said Stephen Brand to his nephew. "Money isn't everything. You can win and lose a whole lot of money but the sunsets and rainbows and beauties of nature can only do your soul good through the medium of your eyes. It is a mistake to risk possible blindness for money and the things it can buy!"

The telephone shrilled and Dexter Brand went smiling to answer it, his fine old uncle's advice already slipping heedlessly away.

Dexter left the telephone, having promised to take Adele Merner to the theater that night and a night club afterward. It was because of Adele that Dexter was driving himself on to possible wealth. Adele with the corn-color hair and the corn-flower eyes and the eager, greedy pursuit of everything that was new, expensive and interesting. Adele who inspired a fellow to tread the rosy clouds of high romance with her soft, tender, babyish little ways, so cleverly concealing the hard, brittle, calculating spirit underneath.

"Did you see a doctor, Dex," asked Adele as she snuggled down in the roadster that night on the way to the theater.

"Advised me to lay off—get away from my invention."

"Oh! But why? Is he afraid? Why did he advise that, Dex?"

"Oh, he mentioned possible blindness, later on!"

"But Dexter—not before you've finished your invention?" asked Adele, a sharp little clip to her usually soft voice.

"Oh, no. I'll have that done. Don't worry. I only saw one specialist; another might disagree entirely with him!"

* * * * * * *

"There's a young lady waiting in the reception room," announced Biggs, Uncle Steve's aged butler, a few days later. "She said something about an ad."

Rubbing his aching eyes nervously with his thin hands, Dexter gazed upon the most beautiful girl he had ever seen.

"You wanted a secretary who understood mechanical business enough to take notes, and I feel qualified, because you see my father was an inventor."

The voice was low and sweet; in perfect keeping with her beauty, Dexter decided, and he flushed as he said: "I'm sure you'll do. But the salary is small, and you'll have to live here with my uncle and me. I work all hours, you know?"

"That will be quite all right; I'm familiar with the erratic hours of inventors!" she said, smiling, and Dexter forgot his eyes for the first time in many weeks.

* * * * * * *

In the sputtering light of an acetylene torch, the grotesque figure of a man in a green hood stood feverishly at a work bench. At his side, a girl with curling coppery hair working equally fast at a note book.

The telephone rang and Sheila Burns went reluctantly to answer it. "For you, Mr. Brand. Miss Merner."

"Sorry," said Dexter into the receiver. "It's impossible, Adele. Oh be sensible, for heaven's sake! It won't be more than a day more."

Then a sharp gasp as a pain, a moment of doubt and then: "Find a lamp, will you, Miss Burns—the lights seem to have left us. What? My God!" And that was how Dexter Brand found himself suddenly stopped. Just as success and fame seemed within reach.

Adele went abroad the next week, after she had ascertained definitely from Sheila Burns that Dexter might be blind a lifetime and that he had most certainly not finished the invention that was to make him rich and famous.

"I guess you were right, uncle," remarked Dexter one morning. "I should have stopped to store up a few memories, with my eyes. Now I've lost the eyes and the possible money, too! And even the woman I loved turned me down.

"I used to think that Sheila liked me a little," he went on, "but even she seems to have forgotten us."

"Oh, no I haven't, I've just been busy," remarked Sheila who had just come in. "I've been down to register your patent and see a specialist."

"Why?" demanded the blind man. "Surely not for money! You alone knew how little I had!"

"No. Can't you understand that one does things for other reasons?"

"Yes, I know that, now. But even if you did—like me a lot, I may never be able to ask you—"

"That's true; because I wouldn't marry you if you were well. And I'm pretty certain that you won't be blind very long—not if this German specialist is right."

"D'you mean that you care enough for me to—marry me—now?" asked Dexter softly.

"If you don't ask me pretty soon your chance will be gone!"

"Come here, you darling," he said, half under his breath, and when she stood before him, he rose unsteadily, and gathered her hungrily into his arms, murmuring incoherent terms of endearment.

A long time later, after Sheila had gone, he told his amazing luck to his delighted uncle, adding, "Blind man's luck, eh?"

DISEASE GERMS CARRIED BY FLIES

Flies Must Be Killed If Infection Is To Be Prevented.

Eminent health authorities say that the ordinary housefly reeks with filth and germs of dread diseases. These flies' bodies are covered with fine hairs that are saturated with unspeakable matter. They drag their contaminated bodies over food intended for human consumption. Flies taint everything they touch.
Science has developed a pleasant way to banish this most dangerous insect. Send a cloud of FLY-TOX mist high into the air and envelope and settle flies crawling on ceilings, resting on lighting fixtures or hiding behind hanging pictures.
Have the sprayer handy, filled with FLY-TOX; and when those winging insects such as flies, mosquitoes, moth-millers and other bugs invade your home; or spiders appear with an unsightly web, a few strokes of the sprayer ends the invasion with death.
FLY-TOX is a clean, pure, fragrant liquid which is stainless and harmless to people. It was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship.

Hay, Dry Leader, Apparent Winner

As more Than Half the Precincts Had Reported in the Missouri Primary —Patterson Leads in Republican Race.

St. Louis, Aug. 8 (AP).—Charles M. Hay, Missouri dry leader and bitter opponent of Senator James A. Reed, was apparently nominated today as Democratic candidate for United States senator, as more than half the precincts had reported in the Missouri primary.

Hay had a lead of 12,125 votes over James A. Collet, a wet, whose candidacy was sponsored by Senator Reed, who is retiring from the Senate after 15 years of service. The apparent defeat of Collet, however, was not regarded as a real test of Senator Reed's strength, as the former had entered politics only recently.

In the Republican senatorial race, Roscо Patterson of Kansas City was leading his nearest opponent, Nathan Frank, a St. Louis lawyer, by 8,215.

The Democratic gubernatorial nominee was Francis M. Wilson of Platte City, who led State Senator A. L. McCawley of Carthage, author of the Missouri dry law, by 76,520 votes.

Henry S. Caulfield, St. Louis, former circuit judge, was apparently the Republican choice for governor with a lead of 20,160 votes over Lieutenant Governor Phil A. Bennett, a dry.

While the wet and dry question ran through the major races, it was a bitter issue in the Democratic senatorial fight, in which Senator Reed, with characteristic outbursts of invective and sarcasm, attacked Hay, because of Hay's arid views and on account of old political and personal scores.

Feud Began In 1920

The feud between them began in 1920 when Missouri Democracy literally ousted Reed on grounds that he was antagonistic to the policies of the late President Wilson. Hay was a leader of Reed's opposition.

Continuing the fight, Hay took the stump against Reed in the 1922 primary and supported Breckenridge Long for the Senatorial nomination. Returning from the Houston convention, Reed immediately lent himself to the campaign of his friend Collet and issued a statement attacking Hay as being antagonistic to Governor Smith's prohibition stand.

The statement brought a flat refusal from Hay to quit the race because of his difference with Governor Smith. Hay said there was room for a dry on the ticket as the Democratic platform "was broad enough for all to stand on."

Four addresses by Senator Reed followed, in which he compared Hay to Senator Tom Heflin of Alabama saying that "Heflin and Hay are as much alike as two pieces of beef from the same carcass, only the Hay piece comes from nearer the horns."

Hay replied with a plea for Democratic harmony and paid tribute to the the "human note" that he said ran through the life and career of Governor Smith. Collet meanwhile pressed his militant anti-dry views and stressed the incongruity between Hay's views and those of Governor Smith on prohibition.

For Democratic United States Senator returns from 1,911 precincts out of 4,135 in Missouri, gave Young 76,656; Hay 96,859; Collet 66,732.

SummonsSaratoga Officials to Albany

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—Governor Smith today summoned the public safety commissioner of Saratoga Springs and the district attorney and the sheriff of Saratoga county to Albany for a conference on alleged gambling and vice conditions of the resort.

The three officials, who yesterday were threatened by the governor with removal from office if they were found negligent in enforcing the law, were notified by telephone to be at the executive offices during the afternoon.

Governor Smith declined to disclose what he purposed to say to the Saratoga authorities until after he had conferred with them. He did say, however, that he had received a partial report from State Troopers whom he sent to Saratoga Springs in plain clothes to make an investigation of conditions. The nature of this report was not revealed.

The officials summoned to the capital are Edward Sweeney, Commissioner of Public Safety at Saratoga Springs and District Attorney John D. Smith and Sheriff William J. Cromie of Saratoga county.

In calling for strict enforcement of the law at Saratoga Springs, where a racing meeting is in progress throughout the month, the governor disclosed that reports had reached him that gambling and vice were flourishing there.

George E. Brennan Dies in Chicago

Was One of the Staunchest Supporters of Governor Smith For the Presidency—Bulwark of Illinois Democracy.

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP).—George E. Brennan, Democratic national committeeman and master mind of Illinois Democracy since the passing of Roger Sullivan, died today.

The death of the veteran Democratic chief came at 8:10 o'clock this morning, following a coma of several hours during which his sturdy constitution alone had warded off the end, which had seemed inevitable since yesterday.

Brennan was stricken more than a week ago with tooth infection. Septic poisoning developed after an operation for the removal of two teeth. His physicians, however, gave him an even chance to recover until Monday night, when his kidneys ceased to function.

Brennan was one of the staunchest supporters of Governor Alfred E. Smith for the presidency, both in 1924, when he first sought the presidential nomination, and again this year at Houston, when the New York governor was chosen to head the party's national ticket.

Suggested Roosevelt to Name Smith.

It was Brennan's suggestion that Franklin D. Roosevelt, ever opposed to Tammany Hall, be selected to nominate Smith at the national convention. Brennan, too, was given credit for the first realization of the value of night sessions at Houston, creating the possibilities of radio broadcasting.

Several weeks ago the Illinois chief visited Governor Smith in New York.

Long a bulwark of Illinois Democracy and for eight years its guiding hand, his passing on the eve of another presidential campaign was regarded as an almost irreparable loss by his party associates.

For several years Brennan had been suffering from diabetes, and when the poison from the infected teeth began to spread through his system and a lung became affected, his strength quickly ebbed. He was 63 years old in May.

Brennan's widow and an adopted daughter survive.

Killed on Highway In Front of House

George E. Myer Struck by Auto on Saugerties-Catskill Highway—Motorist, Who Tried to Avoid Him, Exonerated of Blame.

George E. Myer, elderly resident of the Saugerties-Catskill highway, was instantly killed in front of his home opposite the Parels garage Tuesday morning at 9:50 o'clock, by a Dodge sedan operated by Edward K. Smith of Chatham, N. J., which was south bound.

Smith was exonerated of all blame by Coroner W. Norman Connor after hearing statements of witnesses and Police Captain A. W. Richter of Saugerties, who conducted an investigation, and he pronounced death accidental.

According to witnesses the Smith car was not going over 20 miles an hour, Myer was walking on the highway in an uncertain direction, the driver of the car tried to avoid hitting the man and as a result landed in a ditch against a stone wall after striking Myer.

Dr. B. W. Gifford found the man dead upon arrival and the coroner was notified. It was found that Myer suffered a broken neck, broken right wrist, and compound fractures of the right leg, which was nearly severed. His wife and one son, Frederick, survive.

Mr. Smith was accompanied by his wife and two sons, Howard, 16, and Edward, 8, none of whom were injured when their car struck a stone wall after the driver tried to avoid hitting Myer.

Just a Little Family Squabble

Bernard Measkuy of Poughkeepsie Paid Call on His Brother-in-law on Hasbrouck Avenue and Said He Was Received With a Bottle Over the Head.

Otis Holden of 124 Hasbrouck avenue, arrested on a charge of assault, received a thirty days' suspended sentence in police court this morning, while his brother-in-law, Bernard Measkuy, of 141 South Water street, Poughkeepsie, also arrested for assault, was discharged. The trouble arose Tuesday evening at the Holden residence and the police were called in.

According to Bernard's story as told to Judge Shufeldt in court, he had married Holden's sister and last week his brother-in-law and his wife paid them a visit at their home in Poughkeepse and when leaving urged the Measkuys to pay them a return visit.

The Measkuys accepted the invitation on Tuesday, and according to Bernard he had just stepped into the Holden doorway when he was greeted with a bottle on the head, which knocked him out. Bernard was cut so badly and bleeding so profusely that when the police arrived they hustled him to the City of Kingston Hospital where the wounds were dressed.

On the other hand, Holden informed the court that while it was true he had struck Bernard with a soda water bottle, he had been forced to do it in self defense.

When Bernard was brought into police headquarters Tuesday evening he was bleeding profusely and his clothing was spattered with blood.

This morning Bernard sad that he would like to drop the charge against his brother-in-law.

Holden, on Tuesday evening, when Bernard preferred a charge of assault against him, also preferred a charge of assault against Bernard and both spent the night in the county jail.

Eleanor Was Discharged.

After a hearing in police court, Eleanor Golden, a negress, arrested on a warrant sworn out by Laura Sheaffell, another negress, charging assault in the third degree, was discharged.

Louis Simon Fined $5.

Kingston Soon to Have Aerovanes

Kingston is to have aerovanes at an early date, if the plans of the Aerovane Corporation of New York city, which have the approval of Mayor Dempsey and President Flanagan, go into effect. Aerovanes are signals for aviators, indicating the direction of the wind and carrying an arrow 13½ feet in length on which is painted the name of the city. The arrow also is set to the points of the compass and is on a standard 28 feet above the ground. The lettering on it can be read from an airplane 1,500 feet up in the air.

At least four of these aerovanes will be set, possibly more, at points around the city, along main traveled roads. They must be in a fairly open spaces in order that the inscription on the arrow way be read from above. The arrow is, of course, set with a flat side up. Revenue for all this is to be derived from those who buy advertising space on the aerovanes, which is on tablets and hangers lower down on the standards and may be read from the highways.

Kiwanis Kapers Kome to Kingston

Recent meetings of the Kiwanis Club held at the Governor Clinton Hotel have been filled with busy planning for the club's second production of Kiwanis Kapers. Word was received from Charlie Adams this week that the rehearsals will commence on Wednesday night, August 29, at the Masonic Club, where they were held last year. Charlie promise an all new show and one that will equal or eclipse the successful production of last season.

Mr Adams stated that the cast obtained in Kingston last year was the best he had had in some time and it is hoped that Paul Zucca, the chairman, will hear from any talent that was missed last year as he is desirous to build up as strong a cast as last year or better. Any one interested will please see Mr. Zucca or call him at phone 900.

The tickets will be placed on sale in the very near future and by the inquiries that the members of the club are receiving the prospects are bright for a splendid sale in support of a worthy cause.

Old Southern City

By grants of 1675 and 1687 Col. William Byrd obtained possession of a tract including the site of Richmond, and in 1733 his son, Col. Evelyn Byrd, laid out the town. CITY EXPENSES.

What good does it do to save farm waste of raw materials, Dr. Harrison E. Howe asks, if the saving is going to be eaten up by costly service and high prices to consumers? He paints an illuminating picture of the expense of city life:

Because of the congestion, there has been built up an involved system of distribution. There are brokers, jobbers, wholesalers and warehouse men all adding tremendously to the expense of transportation and handling. As a result, whatever is done by the farmer to cut his cost of production or increase his yield will very likely not affect the consumer until something is done to simplify distribution.

It costs as much to take a box of tomatoes from Jersey City across the river to New York and place it in the hands of the retailer as it does to pick the crop in California, sort it, pack it and ship it clear across the country.

This is absurd from the standpoint of the efficiency engineer, unfair to the producer and unfortunate for the consumer. Nobody is particularly to blame. It is merely a complicated system that has grown up little by little, with everybody in the long chain of distribution ministering to the convenience of the consumer—and making him pay what the service costs, plus a reasonable profit. It is pleasant to have all these services performed. But it costs too much and absorbs the labor and capital of too many people.

So far the system of distribution has grown more and more complicated and expensive. Hereafter it should be simplified and cheapened. Ways will be found, when business brains concentrate on the problem as they have concentrated on production, and the day when this comes to pass will not be hastened by oratory in Congress or the enactment of legislation to further cumber the government with matters that are none of its business and the only effect of which would be to provide more jobs for the worthless and more taxes for producers and consumers to pay.

"NULLIFICATION".

The frequent charge that any effort to change or modify a law based on a constitutional amendment is "nullification" both in spirit and in fact reveals a curious form of fanatical obstinacy that disregards history and overlooks the provisions of the Constitution itself. It is true that nothing is ever actually erased from the Federal Constitution, provisions for negro slavery and the return of fugitive slaves to their legal owners being still found in its original articles; but the venerable instrument does not pretend to be immutable and itself provides means whereby it can be altered or modified when majority opinion so demands. Such alteration has already been accomplished through amendments in nineteen particulars on ten separate occasions, and it is only reasonable to expect, as time goes on, that there will be more alterations or modifications to meet new conditions or to correct misguided rulings.

And in the future, as in the past, the ridiculous cry of "nullification" will come only from a minority bitterly opposed to the alteration undertaken. When President Lincoln converted a mining camp into the State of Nevada in order to get enough votes to pass the 13th amendment there was sufficient ground for objection of a technical sort, but practically every American will now agree that the Constitution's slavery provision needed to be made ineffective. Those who shout "nullification" because it is now proposed to modify or put in more reasonable and workable shape a law based on the 18th amendment must be conscious that they are in error—when they are blessed with ordinary intelligence.

Everyone is sorry that Capt. Courtney was unable to complete his flight. He had worked so long and so earnestly on his plans and had to overcome so many mishaps, that his perseverance and pluck deserved better fortune. The rescue of Capt. Courtney and his companions is gratifying. Because they were in an airplane built to float upon water as well as fly through air they were able to survive the ten hours that elapsed between their first sight and the arrival of the crew of the rescuing steamer Minnewaska. Because their fuel ran out they could call for help and tell their position. It is too late now to stop the long ocean flights. Man is determined to conquer the air above the sea. From now on, however, there should be some way of insuring as much protection as possible—radio, navigable boats, planes built to ride the waves, navigation instruments and knowledge of their use.

There cannot be much wrong with the state of business in this country when General Motors, for the first six months of the year, piles up net earnings of $161,000,000. That is a gain of $32,000,000 or 25 per cent over the same period last year. It breaks the record not only for General Motors but for any other industrial organization in this or any other country. It is equivalent to $9 a share for the half year on 17,400,000 shares of common stock, after taking care of the preferred stock. Evidently people are buying cars of all types and prices. They must be making money. Automobile purchases reflect general prosperity, and in turn promote that prosperity through the industries directly benefited.

LIVER CURES ANAEMIA.

Just a few days ago I wrote about the use of calf's liver by people in normal health, and spoke of the work of Dr. Beaumont S. Cornell of McGill University, Montreal.

Dr. Cornell was able to show that calf's liver had no effect upon the blood of normal individuals as it did not increase the richness or number of the red corpuscles.

My object in writing this was to enable people who needed the calf's liver to get a sufficient amount, and at an easier price, because there should now be less demand for it.

Just why liver has no effect upon normal blood was not mentioned in my article, but now we have a possible explanation from Dr. P. Jungmann of Berlin.

As you know the blood is broken up and destroyed by the action of the different processes of the body, and gets remade by the action of certain organs and tissues such as bone marrow, spleen, liver, and so forth.

Now in pernicious anaemia the blood is broken up in shorter time and some of the materials of which it is made are lost by way of the urine.

The liver also fails to do its part in the making of new blood. Dr. Jungmann tells us that the calf's liver, or other liver for that matter, acts upon the lining of these blood making organs and tissues in such a way that the red blood corpuscles are not broken up so readily. They do more work before they are destroyed.

In other words it is not so much the fact that calf's liver makes new blood corpuscles, as the fact that by its action the red corpuscles that are already in the blood are not destroyed so soon.

This gives Nature a chance to make new ones as fast as they are needed. Now what is it that is causing the blood making apparatus to fall down in its work, as in pernicious anaemia?

Some infection, some poison; a poison that seems to resemble the poison that is manufactured when you work hard physically. This poison coursing throughout the body in the circulation, interferes with the work of the blood making apparatus.

This is the reason that people with pernicious anaemia are so tired and weak.

Now it is possible that hard mental work, mental strain or worry, may so interfere with the digestive apparatus that delays, particularly in large intestine may cause absorption of waste or poisonous material into the blood and this poison acts on the lining of the blood making apparatus.

Infection from teeth, tonsils, or gall bladder may more likely be the cause of the poisoning.

HOW

BEES ARE ENABLED TO FIND FOOD'S LOCATION.—For a long time naturalists have been trying to solve the problem as to how the honey bee reveals the location of its "find" to its companions. At last science has found out the methods whereby a bee, after securing nectar from a flower, can make certain that others of the swarm will go to that same flower without erring in their path to the treasure trove. C. K. Ogden, in Science Notes of the Forum, explains the matter thus:

When bees are about to swarm they produce a humming noise even before the hive is left. Yet it is known that the sense of hearing in bees is far from acute. It is difficult to make them respond to even a loud noise. It was observed that at the same time as the bees made the humming noise spoken of they emitted a peculiar odor. This smell is produced by certain minute glands situated on the back of the abdomen of the bee. The hum is due to a beating of the wings and it appears that this wing movement is really made with the object of blowing the scent away from the body of the bee. The odor, then, is the real means of communication. It is emitted from the glands on the back, and wafted away from the body of the bee by movements of the wings.

When the first bee finds the food he at once brings his scent gland into action, emitting the odor. This he continues to do on his flight home, when inside the hive, and on his flight back again to the food; leaving a trail of scent in the air behind him. It is this trail which is followed by the workers on their way to the source of the food. We see now why they fly in a straight line, and why, when occasionally they sally forth before the messenger, nevertheless they go directly to the food.

How Fast Wind Blows Is Easy to Ascertain

The leaves and branches of trees give a good indication of how fast the wind is blowing. When leaves are still there is no appreciable wind, it being less than two miles an hour. Leaves feebly agitated indicate a light breeze of about five miles. Branches stirring slightly show a moderate breeze of about ten miles, and when branches bend a little the wind has increased to fifteen miles.

Branches rocking and swinging and poplars bending indicate a wind of twenty miles an hour; leaves torn from trees, twenty-five miles; and when light branches are broken, a tempest of thirty-five miles. A violent tempest of fifty-five miles breaks strong branches, while a hurricane or tornado of about eighty miles an hour damages house roofs.

How to Test Porcelain

Collectors of old china will be interested to know that the authenticity of certain types of old porcelain can now be determined by chemical tests. Under the direction of Dr. Alexander Scott tests have been worked out in the laboratory of the British museum that have helped classify several doubtful pieces in the museum collections without disfiguring the specimens. Old patent acts were consulted to determine the chemical composition of Old Bow and Chelsea china, and tests were then resorted to, to detect the presence of various phosphate components known to have been used in its composition.

How Depth Is Measured

There are two methods of measuring the depth of the ocean. The old way, still in use, is to let down a wire on which is fastened a heavy weight. The depth can be ascertained by measuring the wire. The new method uses an instrument called a sonic depth finder, invented by Dr. H. C. Hayes of the experiment station of the Navy department in June, 1922. The principle is that a sound impulse emanating from a point near the surface of a body of water will be reflected back to that point by any submerged surface within its range of propagation.

How Long to Brew Tea

Among other things, the government has determined just the proper length of time to brew tea and why. On an average, a three-minute infusion in boiling water has been found to produce the best results. This is because in that length of time most of the theine—the desirable element—which lies in the skin or outer part of the leaf, is extracted, and very little of the tannin—an undesirable element found in the inner tissue of the leaf—is drawn out by the brew.

How Island Got Name

The Spanish name of the island Yerba Buena is due to the former prevalence of the fragrant herb. The alternative name of Goat island is explained by the story that some goats were brought from the Sandwich islands in 1835 and turned loose on Yerba Buena, where they multiplied so rapidly that by 1850 they numbered more than 1,000.

Vanity Universal

Vanity is so anchored in the heart of man that a soldier, a camp-follower, a cook, a porter, makes his boasts and is for having his admirers; even philosophers wish for them. Those who write against it yet desire the glory of having written well; those who read desire the glory of having read; I who write this have maybe this desire, and perhaps those who will read it.—Pascal.

Information

Who can blame the young woman that carry steaming things about in restaurants if they become irritated these days? "That, madam," said the waitress sweetly, "is the Panama canal."—The New Yorker.

On Fashions

Buttercup Yellow, Blue, Green, and Brown All Are Rated High—Irregularity is the New Order of Things for Brims, Crowns Remaining Shallow

New York—Chanel, as every reader of fashion knows, sponsored buttercup yellow for summer, and, like most Chanel preferences, it has been widely approved. Yet one can hardly call yellow the dominating summer color abroad. Judging from first and second-hand information from smart sources, much of the descriptive matter deals with blue.

America has taken blue to her bosom, but has shown a very strong disinclination to leave off "the wearing of the green." Blue is newer, blue is smarter, but green wins by a wide majority. Yellow is away behind in popular favor, but shows every indication of creeping up for evening, and by the time southern wardrobes are under discussion will probably be the leader for sports.

Brown Predicted for Fall

Chanel, of course, has not turned traitor to green, which, by the way, she did much toward starting on its triumphal course, and her green chiffon in delicate stencil effect is seen wherever there are smart women. Brown is given by most of those who have prophetic sense, as the primary fall color, and all manner of brown accessories are being prepared toward that time. Of course, one has heard of and seen brown all summer, especially in combination with white, and most frequently in the satisfactory form of polka-dotted dress and velveteen coat.

Millinery interests are divided for fall. Reboux has aroused some of it by her sponsorship of the poke—modified, but for all that a poke. Reboux, Descat, and others have seized upon the passing fancy for irregular things, and have designed several hats that are nothing if not irregular in brim. Velvet novelties are appearing, among them being one so created that it produces something of the effect of needlepoint. Perhaps the most sensational development of all is the predicted return to favor of hatter's plush, of the long-haired variety.

"Silver Fox" Felt

Crowns apparently remain shallow and trimmings are introduced with caution. A clever felt that is offered under the name of silver fox is liked in Paris. It owes its name to the fact that white hairs are included in its composition, much after the manner in which they occur in the pelt from which it is named.

The graceful silhouettes peculiar to the summer evening gown are being repeated for fall, and in much the same fabrics. Incidental beadings occur, and there are spangled scarfs and jackets, but taken by and large, the evening dress does not depend on glare and glitter for its decorative effects. Some of the better-dressed women cleave to the unadorned satin dress, but whatever the fabrics, they are united in voting for the fuller and longer skirt.

On Rearing Children
from CRIB to COLLEGE

Compiled by the Editors of "CHILDREN, The Magazine for PARENTS"

"Children are tomorrow in terms of today."

A father needs the child, almost if not quite, as much as the child needs the father.

The boy who has a good father will never go wrong. The fathers of boys who go wrong are often good men, but not good fathers.

There are times when a child's improved nutrition will show most clearly not in increased height and weight, but in a more alert mind, greater concentration and attention, better nervous control, increased resistance to colds, brighter eyes, and more frequent and natural laughter. These things cannot be "measured" like pounds and inches. They are the signs and symbols of a "healthy child," which it is the doctor's and the mother's art to understand.

The daily dressing and undressing of your children would seem like a hopeless business, were it not for two things: First, manufacturers of children's clothing are becoming increasingly aware of the child-dressing problem and are co-operating in a very satisfactory way by making garments that are much easier to put on and take off. Second, there is a growing recognition among mothers that the normal child can do a great deal more towards dressing himself than is generally expected of him. A small child's clothes should be laid out for him every day. He should then be encouraged to get into them himself. He will need help with the buttons at first, but even these he will soon master because of his pride in the accomplishment.

A child trained in careless spending will follow those ways, and present-day parents often give definite training in wastefulness by what seems to them only kindly consideration of youthful lack of judgment and experience. "Let them be free and happy when they can; care will come soon enough." Why use these excuses in explanation of our failure to teach children care in the use of money. By inaction and silence we approve the four-year-old's careless attitude toward his nickel. By scolding and bitter reproaches we condemn the same attitude in the adolescent, and find it inexcusable in the adult.

Teach your children to recognize and avoid poison ivy. Prevention of poisoning after a known contact can sometimes be effected by a thorough bathing with soap and hot water. It is also helpful to apply a solution of lead acetate. Lead acetate is always effective in treating ivy poisoning during the initial stages as it discourages spreading. Afterward use a solution of zinc oxide. Other treatments are a wash of 2 or 3 per cent boracic acid solution followed by zinc ointment. Lime water for the wash and carbolized ointment also are fairly good remedies. Ivy poisoning is recognized by severe inflammation of the skin, itching, swelling and blistering. When it is severe it is best to consult a physician.

The gutter stones shall be fourteen inches in width and at least three inches thick. The curb stones shall be set to the established elevation and the grade of the street and cut to curves of the proper radius at intersecting streets.

Little Band-Wagon Journeys

By L. T. MERRILL

23.—Horance Greeley's Tragic Campaign

A MORE fantastic candidacy than that of Horace Greeley never has been presented by a major American political party—fantastic and pitiable. You for at the polls say not only defeat but bereavement and death for the great New York editor.

President Grant's renomination by the Republicans in 1872 was a foregone conclusion. His war record made that certain, whatever his failures in office had been. The Philadelphia convention nominated him unanimously with great enthusiasm.

But a protest was beginning to be heard against loose political morality, neglect of civil service reform and kindred matters.

This reform movement, furthered by the original initiative of Senator Carl Schurz of Missouri, crystallized finally in the Liberal Republican convention at Cincinnati. Here Charles Francis Adams—grandson of the second President and son of the sixth—was the man whom the steadier Liberals wanted to nominate. But Horace Greeley succeeded in slipping in as the standard-bearer.

It was a decidedly peculiar and unhappy choice, for while the convention had been called partly in response to a demand for tariff reduction, Greeley was one of the foremost advocates of extreme protection in America. With a rare candor, the inability of the convention to agree on any tariff policy was frankly avowed in its platform.

When the Democrats held their national convention a few weeks later at Baltimore, despairing of beating Grant if two tickets were in the field to oppose him, they picked Greeley, too, and accepted the Cincinnati platform in its entirety.

Here was groveling to expediency. "Old Horace" in his New York Tribune had been a bitter foe not only of free trade but of all free traders. He had maintained staunchly in his paper that if all Democrats were not rascals, then all rascals were at least Democrats.

Mindful of Greeley's sharpness toward the South at certain vacillating periods of his shifting wartime policy, some of the southern delegates at Baltimore no doub. would rather have seen him hanged in effigy than nominated by their convention.

The Democrats' acceptance of Greeley led the New York Nation to remark, "Mr. Greeley appears to be backed crow to more of his fellow-citizens than any other candidate for office in this or in any other age of which we have record."

The campaign of 1872 presented the paradox of the Republicans running as their candidate a man who had been a Democrat up to 1868, and the Democrats supporting a war Republican.

Greeley, as the best-known American editor of his day, had a tremendous popular following. But as a candidate he was enmeshed in a tangle of changing, contradictory editorial utterances that now tightened to confound him.

These blatant contradictions and Greeley's quaintness of appearance, with his fringe of chin whiskers, his old white coat and his white top-hat, were made much of by Thomas Nast, the king of American cartoonists. The campaign became in large measure a cartoonists' battle between Nast, who drew fierce, sometimes almost viciously cruel pictures in Harper's Weekly lampooning Greeley, and Morgan, the rival cartoonist in Leslie's Weekly, who caricatured Grant as a Napoleon and a freebooter.

Greeley vigorously stumped the West amid great applause. But with the burden of the campaign and grievous domestic worries upon him, the health of the candidate, then in his sixty-second year, broke. Just before election he spent long, sleepless vigils at the bedside of his dying wife. "I have not slept one hour in twenty-four for a month," he said to a friend. "If she lasts, poor soul, another week, I shall go with her."

The final bitter disappointment of an overwhelming political defeat was the mortal stroke for Greeley. His mind failed. In less than a month after the election he was in his coffin.

"Card" Did Its Work

The honor of making the quaintest known visiting card—if card it may be called—must surely belong to the Dutch painter, Frank Flores. He journeyed several miles once to see his friend, Aartgen, and finding, when he got there, that the friend was out, he is supposed to have seized a lump of charcoal and to have drawn a figure of St. Luke on one of the walls. Returning later, Aartgen declared that no one but Flores could have been responsible for such a drawing, and accordingly he immediately set out to repay the visit.

Conservatism

"Why have you never striven for higher office?"

"I have preferred," said Senator Sorghum, "the confidence implied by frequent re-election to my present situation to a willingness on the part of my constituents to let me sacrifice a steady job in order to experiment."

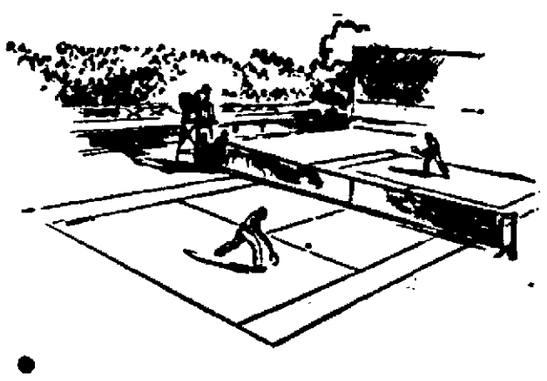
9160 DAVIS CUP CHAMPIONSHIPS could be played in DUNLOP CITY



THE world's tennis championship was decided this year at Roland Garres, near Paris, France. The entire stadium covers about 11 acres. Yet Dunlop's productive properties, if combined into one place, would form a "Dunlop City," of over 100,000 acres—big enough for 9160 stadiums like Roland Garres.

Over 40 years of steady success have made Dunlop so immense. To attain such success, the road records of Dunlop tires must have been far above the ordinary. But what caused that?

Simply this: Dunlop possesses advantages in tire-making such as no other maker can equal. Owning its own vast rubber plantations . . . with $195,000,000 in resources, 40 years' tire-building experience, and 45,000 craftsmen . . . Dunlop is in a unique position to make consistently better tires.

Take rubber, for instance. Motorists have often remarked that Dunlop treads seem to "never wear down."

This amazing toughness is brought about by scientific blends of different types of rubber. To make doubly sure, Dunlop analyzes every batch that comes off the rubber mill . . . before it goes into the tire.

On top of the constant laboratory work of chemists and engineers, Dunlop runs over a million miles of road tests every year. The test fleet reveals more than actual mileage on steady runs. It scientifically studies the effect of quick starting and sudden braking in this stop-and-go age.

This extreme thoroughness makes for freedom from trouble. This is one reason why Dunlop has attracted such outstanding dealers . . . dealers who are able and anxious to render superb service.

But there is an even better reason why 60,000 good dealers have allied themselves with Dunlop. It is the same reason that should lead you to decide on Dunlops. It is this: Over 26 million Dunlop Tires are now running.

MILLIONS HAVE "GOLFER'S FOOT", ASSERTS EXPERT.

Indianapolis, Aug. 8 (AP).—"Golfer's foot", or "athlete's foot", is a complaint now making itself felt throughout the country, Dr. M. S. Harmolin, chairman of the scientific committee of the National Association of Chiropodists-Podiatrists, told members of that association in an address prepared for delivery before the annual convention today.

The disease acquired its name from the fact that golfers and other athletes are afflicted in large numbers, said Dr. Harmolin, who is secretary of the Ohio College of Chiropody, Cleveland.

It is an eczematoid eruption of the feet due to fungus infection contracted by walking barefoot on moist surfaces, such as those around swimming pools, in gymnasiums, bathrooms, club houses and other places where people congregate. It is also acquired from contaminated towels, hosiery or slippers.

Dr. Harmolin estimated that tinea trichuphyton, the fungus causing this disorder, is now plying its ravages on more than 20,000,000 feet in the United States.

Redness and soreness between the toes is the first manifestation of the disease. It can be arrested, Dr. Harmolin said, by prompt application of anti-parasitic ointment.

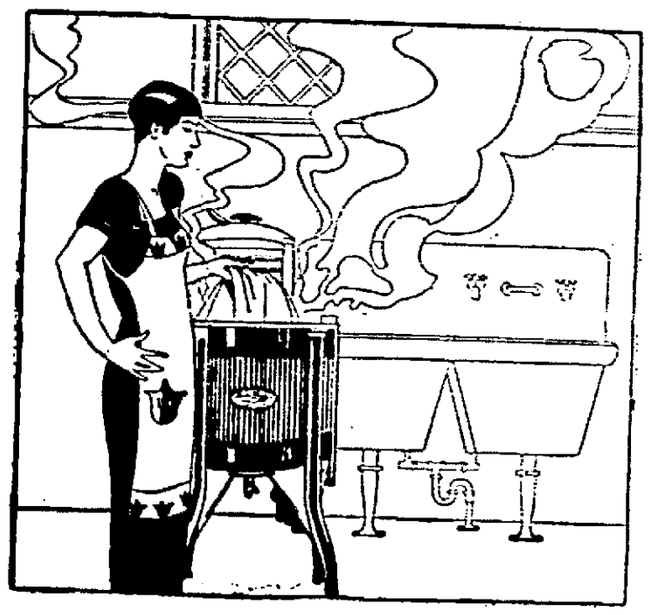
Cool Housekeeping Is Economical



A cool place to work with labor-saving devices are what ease the burden of the hot summer days for the housekeeper. On wash day a constant supply of hot water, an electric washer and an electric fan to keep the cool air circulating play a great part in making hard, hot work easier and cooler.

With an electric washer operating at 1½c per hour, performing the weekly laundry with little effort on your part, with electric breezes from a fan at the approximate cost of ½c per hour and with continuous hot water on tap from an automatic gas storage water heater, housekeeping can be economical and delightfully cool. The electrically equipped home is the cool and comfortable home.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sport Writer.)

If they're wise, first division clubs in the National League will keep a wary eye on the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dixie Bush's Corsairs languished in sixth place for so long that they were counted out not only as possible 1928 champions but also as a factor that the leaders would not have to worry very much about.

But the last month or so has changed the situation completely.

On July 7 the 1927 champions were locked deep in sixth place apparently with no prospect of getting any higher. Then Burleigh Grimes, who had carried the complete burden of pitching winning ball for Bush, began to get some assistance from his mates. The results were immediate and to the point. In the month from July 7 to August 7 inclusive, the Corsairs won 22 games and lost only 7, better than .750 baseball.

This streak has raised the Pirates only one notch to the head of the second division but the interesting part of this is that Cincinnati and Chicago, in a virtual tie for third place, lead the defending champions by only three games. In losing games, the most important factor, the Pirates trail the Reds by only one and lead the Cubs by the same margin. But Joe McCarthy's Chicagoans have won seven more contests than Pittsburgh.

Beating the Brooklyn Dodgers in both ends of a double header, 4 to 3, and 3 to 2, in 12 innings, the Pirates ran their latest winning streak to six in a row. Grimes registered his 20th victory in the opener, the first pitcher in the majors to reach so high a total. The Pirates scored all their runs off McWeeny in the first four innings while Grimes was holding the Dodgers, his former teammates, to seven hits. The nightcap was a pitching duel between Fred Fussell and Bill Doak until the eighth when both retired for pinch hitters. The Robins went into the ninth with a 2 to 1 lead but the invaders promptly tied it up and won out in the 12th on a single by Sparky Adams. Lloyd Waner's sacrifice and Brother Paul's one base blow which sent Adams over with the winning run.

The New York Giants cut a full game of the St. Louis Cardinals' lead by trouncing the league leaders, 10 to 1. Larry Benton was too much for the Cardinals, who got only six hits and were shut out until the ninth. The Giants confined their scoring to the first and eighth innings, eight runs coming across in the latter frame. The Cards' lead was shaved to five and a half games.

The Phils again trimmed the Cubs, 4 to 2, behind the effective pitching of Willoughby. It was the Cubs' third straight defeat at the hands of the cellar dwellers.

The New York Yankees gained back a game of their lead in the American League race by trimming the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 3, while Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics were bowing to Detroit, 4 to 1. Herb Pennock held the Sox safe at all stages while his teammates presented him with a five run lead in the first inning, Ted Lyons being the pitching casualty.

The A's defeat left them four and a half games back of the leaders. Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross star, pitched his thirteenth victory of the season for the Tigers, allowing only five hits and won his own game with a triple in the seventh.

Two home runs by Lou Blue enabled the St. Louis Browns to make it three out of four from the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 5. Blue's second homer broke a tie in the last half of the ninth. Sam Gray chalked up his seventeenth win of the campaign. Ed Morris pitched to only two batters after relieving Russell in the ninth but was charged with the defeat, since the second batsman was none other than Blue.

Sad Sam Jones kept Cleveland in subjection and the Washington Senators whitewashed the Indians, 8 to 0. The Senators rocked Uhle, Shaute and Hudlin for 17 hits.

Americans Lead In Water Events

Amsterdam, Aug. 8 (AP).—The waters of Holland seem to have a good effect on American athletes. Where the Americans who competed on dry land in the Olympic track and field events produced more disappointments to their followers than victories, the swimmers and oarsmen from the United States are riding the crest of the wave, literally and figuratively.

California's great eight-oared crew is performing in masterful fashion on the quiet stretches of the Sloten Canal. The Golden Bears now have three Olympic victories to their credit, defeating Italy by four lengths yesterday. Today the Californians were to meet Canada in the semi-final and, if successful, will row against Great Britain for the Olympic crown.

Ken Myers, the Philadelphia railroad fireman who represents the United States in the single sculls, also reached the semi-finals of his event yesterday by finishing two lengths ahead of Candereau of Switzerland. Three other American crews still are in the running, although they did not compete yesterday. Only two of America's seven entries failed to reach the quarter finals.

In the water as well as on its surface American athletes are among the leaders. Heading the honor list is George Kojac, backstroke star of the New York Boys' Club, who swam to the fore yesterday by setting a world's record in winning his heat in the 100 meter backstroke.

Walter Laufer of Chicago also won his heat in that event, while three American entries, Clarence Crabbe, Austin Clapp and Ray Ruddy, qualified for the semi-finals of the 400 meter free style.

The American swimmers made as fine a showing in this event as in the ones that preceded it. Only Ruddy failed to lead in his heat and he finished second to Arne Borg, Swedish star, who is displaying almost unbeatable speed.

The only disappointment for the United States in swimming came in the 200 meter breaststroke, where Tom Blankenburg of Oakland, Cal., America's only entry, was eliminated in the semi-finals.

The girl swimmers from the United States did not fare so well as they had in previous events. All three entries in the women's 200 meter breaststroke event reached the semi-finals but none could take better than second place in her heat.

Rondouts And Apollos Tied

Apollos Even Matters With R. A. C. After Failing to Score in First Four Innings—Crispell, Rondout Man, Playing With Apollos, Ties Score with Triple.

The Apollos of the Industrial League and the Rondout A. C. broke even in a seven-inning meeting at Block Park Monday evening. The score at the end of the tilt was 5 all. The first four innings in which the Rondouts collected three runs, made it look like victory for the Seventh Ward team as the Apollos failed to score in the quartet of stanzas. In the next three innings they tallied, however, to even matters with the Rondouts. The seventh inning was the harvest period for the Apollos.

Rondouts Scored First.

The Rondouts scored one run in the opening stanza. Stumpf singled, Peters was safe on an error and Leonard's single scored Stumpf. Run making then ceased until the fourth inning, when the Rondouts corralled two. Dulin singled, Coughlin did the same and both were driven home by Stumpf's two-bagger.

Apollos Tally in Fifth.

The Apollos got one run in the fifth after failing to score for the first four innings. Joe Dulin was walked, stole second and made home after getting out of a trap between second and third. In the sixth the Apollos got another run, which brought their standing up to two. The Rondouts were then the possessors of three runs. The second counter of the Apollo team was made when Glaser doubled and reached home on a single by Crispell.

In the last half of the sixth inning the Rondouts raised their score of three to five runs. Niles got a pass, Dulin singled, Feeney reached first on a hit, which scored the two men on bases.

The seventh inning proved the biggest of the game for the Apollos. It was in this session that they corralled three runs and tied the Rondouts. Coughlin, on the mound for the Rondouts, hit Short with the ball. Joe Dulin and Jordan, next two batters, fanned. Jimmy Merritt reached first on an error and Glaser walked, which filled the bases. Percy Crispell, Rondout A. C. player, who was with the Apollos because he works at the magneto factory, cracked out a triple which scored the three runners.

Hercules Bow To West Shore

Having been washed out of the last two games by the rain the Industrial League finally resumed play Tuesday evening. A fair size crowd was at the Athletic Field to see the West Shore defeat the Hercules by a score of 9-6 in a game featured by both good and bad ball playing.

The Railroaders took the lead in the first inning and held it throughout the game, although the Hercules fought hard until the last out. Slipshod fielding by the Hercules helped the Railroaders win.

Lefty Williams pitched for the Railroaders and had full control in every inning except the fifth when the Hercules scored five runs. Chick Mauer opposed Williams at the start, but could not keep up the pace, retiring in the fifth in favor of Becker.

The Railroaders scored four runs in the first four innings, one in each inning. In the fifth they sewed up the game by registering five times. Three errors, two hits and a base on balls accounted for the runs in the fifth.

The Hercules scored one in the second and made a strong bid for the game in the fifth. Five runs and two walks gave them five runs in this inning.

Horses and Autos At Driving Park

Four Days' Meeting at Kingston Driving Park to Be Featured by Three Days of Horse Racing and One Day of Auto Speed Contests.

Horses and automobiles will contend for honors at the four day racing program at the Kingston Driving Park on August 14, 15, 16 and 17. There will be plenty of racing for everyone, whether their favorite be horse racing or automobile racing, for the first three days of the meet there will be harness races with purses amounting to $2,800 and on the last day of the meet there will be A. A. A.-sanctioned racing for the automobile racing fan. The automobile races will find some of the leading dirt track drivers lined up at the start.

In addition to the racing program there will be one of the biggest automobile shows ever held in Kingston. The automobile dealers of the city will show some 150 new 1929 models of automobiles and the public will have an opportunity to inspect and compare the cars, all under one big roof.

Every day there will be a special feature—June Reed and her high school and running horses. This feature alone should draw a number of people.

Horses Arriving Daily.

However, the thing which will make the old horseman's pulse quicken will be the harness races on the first three days of the meet. Already horses are arriving at the track and daily several horses are on the track keeping in trim for the meet. There will be three class races each day and the purses are of a substantial amount and are attracting some good entries.

One of the races which has attracted the greatest amount of interest among horsemen and the public is the special harness race which will be held on Thursday, August 16. This is a race arranged between A. H. Gildersleve, Dave Schenck, William R. Kraft and Elmer Palen. These four well known horsemen will race for one of the most unusual stakes ever put up. The winner of this special race will win the three horses of the other drivers. There should be some good driving in this race and all four of the entries are expecting to win the string of horses.

State Troopers in New Stunts.

Each afternoon there will be exhibition riding by the rough riding team of Troop C, New York State Constabulary under the leadership of Captain Daniel Fox, commander. The members of the team of C Troop this year have some new and unusual stunts which will prove thrillers for the crowd. After being successful in claiming the riding championship of the state for several years the team of Captain Fox this year went to New York city and rode with 101 Ranch for the benefit of the Milk Fund. Their riding was one of the features of the show and Kingston people will have an opportunity of seeing these clever riders each afternoon of the local meet.

The racing program is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and every effort is being made to make the meet a success. Racing will commence each day at 2 p. m., daylight saving time.

Tilden Returns.

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—William T. Tilden II, storm center of American tennis, returned to the United States today from Davis cup competition in France with little to say of his status as an amateur. "I will have nothing to do with professional tennis," was his only emphatic statement as he left the boat.

Deaths Classified

The public health service says that all deaths from diseases are spoken of as natural causes of death. Other causes of death are those resulting from accident or violence.

Blue Sox to Play Beacon

The Blue Sox will meet the Beacon Holy Name team at Hasbrouck Park Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The local team has had a considerable rest which they think, coupled with some real practice and coaching, will prove to their advantage in the coming tilt. The Beacon Holy Name team is noted as a strong aggregation in their home community. The nine will make every effort to take the bacon back to Beacon.

The visitors have not announced their battery. The Blue Sox management is not quite sure what hurler will be sent to the box to uphold the good standing of the Kingstonians. Nick Huber, Ralph Williams and "Dutch" Schlosser are the available men for Sox tossers.

CORBETT HAS HEALTH CAMP NEAR WAPPINGERS.

James J. Corbett, former world's heavyweight champion, was the guest of several Poughkeepsians Saturday afternoon during the filming of moving pictures by the International News Service. Corbett went to Poughkeepsie from his health camp, situated just north of Wappingers Falls, which is expected to develop into a great center of the kind. Corbett cordially invites inspection of his camp by anyone interested.

Curry to Be On Woodcliff Card

According to announcements recently made in Poughkeepsie Joe Curry, New York's outstanding featherweight of the East Side, will be one of the battlers to appear in the main bout at Woodcliff Park, Poughkeepsie, on Thursday, August 16. It was only after considerable bargaining with the promoters that Curry was obtained for the Poughkeepsie show, which is expected to be a stellar one.

Curry's complete record follows: Tony Pelegrinno, won, 10 rounds; Steve Smith, won, twice, 10 rounds; Mike Esposito, won, 8 rounds; Artie DeChamplain, won, 8 rounds; Mike Nolinski, won, 10 rounds; Murray Fuchs, draw, 8 rounds; Harry Goldberg, won, 6 rounds; Eddie Reilly, won, 6 rounds; Snake Auginaldi, won, 8 rounds; Milton Cohen, won, 10 rounds; Johnny Huber, won, 10 rounds; Bart Battelino, won, twice 6 rounds; Benny Hall, won, 10 rounds; Tommy Lorenzo, won, 10 rounds.

Frisco Bautista and Joe Mulligan, who fought a six-round draw in a slashing manner at the last Woodcliff Park bouts, have been rematched. They will likely be assigned the semi-final position on the card.

New Features At State Fair

Agricultural Implements and Utensils Reflective of Pioneer Period Will Show History and Development of That Industry—Spinning Contest to Be Held.

One of the new and interesting features of the New York State Fair will be the agricultural historical museum, a new building which will have been completed when the fair opens, August 27, at the fair grounds at Syracuse, and which will house agricultural implements and utensils reflective of the pioneer period of agriculture.

The fair, replete with varied exhibits and expanded and developed on a broad scale, will have many new and attractive exhibits and displays, but for agriculture there will probably be none which will be given more attention than the old wooden plows and cumbersome implements which were used by our forefathers in tilling the soil.

Commissioner Berne A. Pyrke, of the Department of Agriculture and Markets, stated that for several years the department has been collecting old time implements and farm machinery and that the display will be large and representative. Charles H. Baldwin, director of the Bureau of State Institution Farms, with Jared Van Wagenen, of Lawyersville, and others, has been active in getting together the implements for this exhibit.

The Legislature, at the last session, provided an appropriation for the building and it is now being constructed on the fair grounds. The building is of attractive design and will probably be more or less of a headquarters for representatives of agriculture attending the fair.

The purpose of the building is that there may be a representation of agricultural history and development and that in later days information may be available with regard to early agricultural methods.

Spinning, Weaving, Cobbling.

In addition to the exhibit of old time implements there will be demonstrations of old time spinning, weaving, cobbling, coopering, shingle shaving, and other early handicrafts which were carried on at a time when almost everything used and consumed was produced on the home acres. These exhibits will all show the difficulties confronted by pioneers when farm power was derived largely from men and oxen before the days of gasoline and electric power.

Plans are now being made for a spinning contest in this building, open to any woman over fifty years of age. Well carded rolls of wool will be provided, and applicants will be given an opportunity to spin any day during the fair, except Saturday, by making application to Mr. Van Wagenen. Applications, it is urged, should be sent to Jared Van Wagenen, Lawyersville, N. Y., at an early date so that definite hours may be assigned to each one competing.

Lectures will be given in the auditorium by well known agricultural leaders and educators. Included in the list of speakers will be George Duff, Mr. Van Wagenen and D. P. Witter.

Community singing of old time songs and fiddling by the winner of last year's old time fiddling contest and by John McDermott, of Cortland, well known old time violinist, constitute another part of the program.

WHO AM I?

I am the foundation of all business
I am the source of all prosperity
I am the talent of genius
I am the salt that gives life its savor
I make land the foundation for every fortune.

I can do more to advance youth than his own talents, be they ever so wealthy.

I must be loved before I can bestow my greatest blessings, and achieve my greatest ends.

I add, I make life sweet, purposeful and fruitful.

I am represented in the humblest savings, in the largest block of investments.

All people spring from me.

I AM Work.

Here entereth the season when the graduate begins to get an education.

Dinner, unfortunately, was a little late, and a guest asked the hostess whether she would be kind enough to play something. Seating herself at the baby grand, she executed an admirable excerpt from Wagner. She finished, but there was still a few minutes to wait, and in the rather pained silence she turned to the deaf old gentleman on her right and asked:

"Would you like a sonata before dinner?"

Her guest gave a start of surprise and pleasure.

"Thank you," he replied. "I had a couple on the way here, but I think I could manage another."

Honest Man Found, Prospector Shares Gold Hill With Him

Stumbling Upon a Huge Gold Deposite in the San Juan Mountains, Jack Pickens, (inset) a Prospector, Kept its Location a Secret for 24 Years Until He Could Find an Honest Man to Finance it for Him. He Finally Placed His Trust in Jesse C. Wiley and They Now Are Sharing the Treasure Buried Under the Hill Shown Above.

Summitville, Colo., Aug. 8 (AP).—For 24 years Jack Pickens kept secret the location of a "peak of gold" in the San Juan mountains until he could find a financial backer whom he would trust to help him open the treasure vault locked by nature.

Today Pickens and Judge Jesse C. Wiley, the honest man whom the prospector found after a search of a quarter of a century, are sharing equally the fortune Pickens discovered.

While prospecting over the hills about the Little Annie mine in 1904 Pickens stumbled on a protruding boulder. He tapped the rock with his hammer. A piece broke off, revealing a layer of almost solid gold. Another blow dislodged more gold-lined slabs.

Beneath the surface of that boulder, the prospector concluded, lay a peak of gold.

Determining to kep the discovery a secret, Pickens also resolved to stay near his potential fortune. He obtained a job with a small force of miners at the Little Annie and then began his quiet hunt for an honest man with enough money to exploit the "strike."

Several times the owners of the Little Annie mine started tunnels toward the golden peak, and Pickens held his breath. He was greatly relieved as each of these projects was abandoned, one within 50 feet of his hidden treasure.

Finally, the prospector met the man whom he could trust. He and Judge Wiley formed a partnership, obtained long-time leases on 40 mining claims, including the golden peak, and within six weeks realized $114,000 from the ore taken off only that part of the boulder showing above the grass.

Since then half a million dollars has been hauled away and yellow metal worth many times that amount still is in sight.

Pickens has a wife and 13 children with whom to share the fortune.

Public Hearing To Be Held On B'Way Crossing

Common Council Decides to Hold Public Hearing on Two Plans for Elimination of Crossing Proposed by Railroad—Hearing Friday, August 17.

The common council Tuesday evening decided to hold a public hearing on Friday evening, August 17, to give the public a chance to be heard on the two plans submitted by the New York Central Railroad for the elimination of the Broadway crossing. The two plans were submitted at the public hearings held here by the Public Service Commission recently, and another hearing of the commission will be held in the city on September 14.

The railroad committee of the council reported it had attended the public hearings held at the court house and recommended that the council hold a public hearing before September 14, so that public sentiment on the two proposed plans for the elimination of the crossing could be obtained.

The railroad committee also submitted a report stating that the New York Central would like the views of the council in regard to replacing the present crossing gates on Gage street with flasher signals similar to those in use on the Ulster & Delaware railroad crossings in the city, and recommended that the council go on record as not opposed to the change.

The report was adopted with but one dissenting vote, that of Alderman Burger, who stated that automatic signals would not afford as much safety as crossing gates and that the only remedy to best safeguard the public using that crossing would be to have the gate service all night as well as during the day.

Alderman Hermance said that was the trouble—they had no protection at night as the gates were not operated then, and that residents in that vicinity favored the automatic signal in preference to the gates.

Need More Voting Machines.

Mayor E. J. Dempsey sent in a communication that the city was in need of ten additional voting machines and recommended that the matter be referred to the proper committee. The city now owns twenty machines, one for each voting district, but from the results of the last election it was shown that ten additional machines were needed. These machines cost $940 each, and ten machines would mean an expenditure of $9,400.

The matter was referred to the finance, ways and means committee.

Resolutions Introduced.

Alderman Hermance of the Third ward introduced the following resolutions: that a light be placed on Highland avenue at or about No. 81; that people on Foxhall avenue and Shufeldt street be given some protection in the line of a sewer as the present sewer blocked up and caused water to flow into the cellars; that a bell be placed in city hall.

Petition for Water.

Alderman Hermance also filed a petition from five property owners on Shufeldt street asking to have the water main extended to their properties. The five who signed the petition were William C. Boyle, Kenneth N. Lowe, M. Raymond Drulette, J. Allan Wood and George A. Shufeldt.

Baptist Revival Meeting.

A grand revival meeting will be held at the Emanuel Baptist Church, 151 East Union street, from Sunday evening, August 12, until Friday evening, August 24. It will be conducted by Prophet M. Sparks, D. D., from 8 until 9:30 o'clock. The Rev. H. W. Watkins will sing every evening. Sunday, August 19, deacons will be ordained at 3 p. m. Special meetings will be held every day at 3:30 p. m. at Steep Rocks. All churches, both colored and white, are invited.

Satz Leaves State.

Satz, the ordinary doctor, who has been conducting a store at 59 North Front street, now vacant, has found business so good in that town as the case of the man from James Satz, the owner of the property, and will remain here permanently. A new modern plate glass front is being installed and improvements made in the store interior.

Bungalow Colony for Lake Hill.

W. Horst Overbagh of Washington avenue, Saugerties, has purchased from Merritt Staples tract of land of 25 acres located at Lake Hill in the town of Woodstock, across the Esopus creek from Lake Hill. Mr. Overbagh intends to establish a bungalow colony at that place. A bungalow will be erected this year and others will follow as the demand is created.

New Fish Market To Open.

The Grand Union will open a modern and up-to-date fish market in their store at 292 Wall street. A full line of fresh fish will be carried in the market which will be operated in conjunction with the grocery and meat market at that address. Equipment is being installed and the new department will be opened this week.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Aug. 8. (State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—Southern peach receipts were lighter again today and prices further strengthened on fancy large fruit. Trading was more active. Georgia and North Carolina yellow and white peaches packed in carriers holding six four quart baskets, sold at $1 @ $2.25.

New York city's peach supply during the previous seven days was about 750 cars.

Although state celery was in light receipt, demand was insufficient to absorb offerings and the market was lifeless, values tending lower. Stock in the rough packed in two-thirds crates peddled out as high as $3.50 and as low as $1.25. Michigan celery brought 90c @ $1.25 per highball crate.

Supplies of green peas from upstate New York were moderate. Price changes were few but ranged widely due to the irregular condition of the stock. Demand was confined to the best peas. The top price obtained for best offerings was $3 per bushel basket, while the poorest sold down to $1. Colorado peas in crates of about 40 pounds realized $4.50 @ $6.

The short supply of sour cherries from the Hudson valley sold rapidly at higher prices in a stronger market. Sales on black sour cherries in four quart baskets were at $1.15 @ $1.25.

Receipts of lettuce from upstate New York were fairly liberal. Trading was moderate on good quality stock, but slow on inferior. A large volume of sales on crates of two dozen heads of Big Boston were at $1 @ $2. Good to fancy lettuce commanded $2.25 @ $2.75, and in a few instances several small lots reached $3. Western Iceberg wholesaled at $4 @ $6.50 per crate.

Offerings of state cucumbers and pickles continued limited, and varied greatly in quality. The finest cucumbers brought $1.75 @ $2, rarely $2.25 per bushel basket. Offgrade stock ranged from 75c @ $1.50. Pickles in similar packages brought $1.50 @ $2.50.

Eagle Propagation

The American or bald eagle lays its eggs once a year, usually two in number. The period of incubation is about one month.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Violent and erratic fluctuations in the amusement stocks unsettled today's stock market. Previously, the market had shown a disposition to head upward in the face of an increase from 6½ to 7 per cent in call money, coincident with the calling of about $20,000,000 in bank loans.

Outside the stock market, chief speculative interest centered in the sensational rise of $6.50 a bale in cotton on the publication of the government crop report showing an estimated yield 5,000,000 bales less than had been generally expected.

Weekly steel trade reviews reported that the high July demand had been maintained in the first week in August. Private estimates, however, indicated a drop of 100,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation on Friday. Most of the day's earnings' deports were favorable.

Pathe issues were the sensational features in the amusement group, nearly doubling in price over night. Pathe common advanced from yesterday's close of 4⅞ to 9 and the A stock from 18½ to 33, but they sliped back to 5 and 24½, respectively, in the early afternoon selling movement. Keith Albee ran up 8 points to a new peak at 26½. Loews Co. advanced 4 points and Stanley Company 2½. The brisk rise in these issues represented the driving in of an over-crowded "short" interest which had been built up on reports of poor current business and fall prospects.

When a wave of selling swept through the general list, Dupont broke 6 points, Case Threshing 5, General Motors 3¾, National Tea 3½ and Wright Aeronautical, Montgomery-Ward, General Electric and Johns Manville sold down 3 points or more. Dozens of other issues, many of which had advanced 1 to 2 points in early trading, were carried down a point or more below yesterday's final quotations.

Quotations given by Parker McElroy & Co., members N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city, branch office, 260 Fair street.

They snapped into commands at the drill and displayed a spirit which pleased Captain Preston very much. Several recruits were accepted by Company Clerk Julius Tellier at the Tuesday evening drill. Battery A will hold a drill on Monday night, August 13, and Battery B will drill Thursday night, August 23. Recruits will be accepted on both occasions.

BY THE OFFICE OWL

This is an age of efficiency. Even the first day of April is now fool proof.

Blessings come disguised. Most of us get what we deserve without recognizing it.

You never can tell. Church going is merely the Sunday supplement of many a man's religion.

The Cynical Bachelor observes that it takes two to make a marriage, but one can make a mess of it.

One difference between good luck and bad luck is tha. good luck comes on gum shoes while bad luck hires a brass band.

Some of the people who buy their friends insist upon having them made to order, others are satisfied with the ready-made kind.

Blobbs—"I size up your friend Slicker as a peanut politician." Slobbs—"Possibly, possibly; but I have never known him to shell out."

Muggins—"Dolittle attributes his failure in life to the fact that he has never had a show." Buggins—"That's because he is always waiting for a free pass."

"We should all profit by our mistakes," admonished the good deacon. "Yes, even the clergyman does that when he accepts a wedding fee," chuckled the unregenerate backslider.

Eleven Thousand World War Veterans Participate in Solemn Ceremony Commemorating Comrades Who Fell in Fight for Ypres Salient.

Ypres, Belgium, Aug. 8 (AP).—Eleven thousand British veterans of the World War, including 3,000 women who served in various capacities during that conflict, gathered about Menin Gate today for a solemn ceremony in commemoration of their comrades who fell in the desperately-fought-for Ypres salient.

Among them stood the Prince of Wales, Lady Haig, widow of Britain's victorious commander; Admiral Lord Jellicoe, president of the British Legion, who headed Britain's naval forces in the great struggle, and commanders who bore a share in the battle of Ypres.

The pilgrims had come, some marching along the familiar roads and others by train, their numbers swelled by thousands who had gathered to witness the ceremony until it was estimated that nearly 20,000 men, women and children joined in singing the opening hymn, "O Valiant Hearts."

The service in which this huge congregation participated was beautifully simple and supremely impressive.

Service Heard by Thousands.

It is probable that it was heard by hundreds of thousands of other listeners, since arrangements were made to broadcast it far and wide. The Archbishop of York delivered the chief address of the service, but before he began a two minutes' silence was kept which was so poignant with memories pulsing through the minds of those mute thousands that some men broke down and silently wept while many women sobbed.

After the address the spectators sang many familiar hymns and the legation's wreath was placed upon the memorial gate.

To the pealing of the bells of Ypres churches came a long march past the gate of the ex-service men and the ceremonies were closed.

Th Prince of Wales, who had refused the hospitality of both the French and Belgium governments so that he might join the men in their billets before the ceremonial, was one of the central figures in the ceremonies. Accompanied by General Weygand and others, he took the salute of the veterans in their final march. Not a few of those who passed before him limped on artificial limbs, some even had crutches and there were numerous empty sleeves.

When the thousands had tramped by, the pilgrimage units returned to their various resting places preparatory to visiting the familiar scenes around the old battlefields where some 55,000 of their comrades lie, many in unidentified graves.

CONSIDER YOURSELF

A misfit if you are unable to respect your job.

Whipped as soon as you admit it to yourself.

A victor as long as you keep up the fight.

An object of pity as soon as you begin pitying yourself.

A success if you can honestly say you have done your best.

On the toboggan when you begin thinking your second best is good enough.

Fortunate if you have a friend honest enough to tell you the truth.—Chicago Tribune.

Complete Records by Live Stock Dealers

Law Enacted to Insure Fair Treatment by Dealers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To insure fair treatment, and prevent opportunities for dishonesty in the marketing of live stock at public stockyards is a primary purpose of the Packers and Stockyards act, which is enforced by the packers and stockyards division of the bureau of animal industry of the Department of Agriculture. This imposes definite duties and obligations on dealers engaged in buying and selling live stock at posted public stockyards. It is no longer possible to do business "on the cuff," as was discovered to be the practice of one dealer who was cited to appear for a hearing. He was charged with and admitted failure to keep adequate records of his dealings.

The departmental order required that in future this dealer shall keep the following accounts, records and memoranda pertaining to his transactions:

1. Copies of scale tickets issued by stockyards covering purchases and sales by him.

2. Copies of bills for all purchases of live stock by him.

3. Book record or register of each purchase and sale of live stock showing date, number of head, weight, dockage if any, amount, and incidental expenses.

4. A complete file of canceled checks issued.

5. A check stub corresponding to every check issued.

6. Copies of account sales rendered by market agencies in connection with sales for him.

If any shipper or producer of live stock has reason to believe that he has been treated unfairly at any stockyards, the existence of the required set of records enables the agents of the department to check over the account of the questioned transaction. It is the policy of the department to be lenient toward first offenders, and give them opportunity to mend their ways and comply with the provisions of the law. Subsequent offenses are regarded as more serious, and in such cases the department intends to make full use of the powers conferred by the Packers and Stockyards act.

Causes Responsible for Decline in Summer Milk

During the summer months the milk flow generally drops off badly. At this time the cows are tormented from morning to night by flies and the common idea is that the flies are responsible for this drop in milk.

The fly is not the only cause. The real trouble is that the cows do not graze enough and cannot keep up milk production because they do not eat enough. The reasons for not eating more are the hot weather, the flies, the unpalatable condition of the mature grass in seasons of good pasturage, or, in most seasons, the shortness of the grass.

Using fly repellents does not increase the yield of milk enough to be noticeable, although by spraying the animals once a day it is possible to keep them reasonably free from flies. The most important thing to do is to make it easy for the cows to get all the feed that they need. They should be in the pasture early in the morning and during the night, as little grazing is done in the heat of the day.

Vicious Poultry Pests Difficult to Eradicate

Chicken mites are small grayish red mites about the size of a pinhead when filled with blood. They hide away during the day in cracks and crevices throughout the hen house, migrating to the roosting birds at night to suck blood.

Stick-tight fleas are small flat-sided, hard-bodied creatures that appear as dark areas about the eyes, comb and wattles. Fowl-ticks or blue-bugs are closely related to mites but are always larger, easily seen and have a thick, leathery skin. They are flat, egg-shaped and dark brown in color. Their habits are essentially the same as those of the chicken mite.

Missouri Returns Interest Hoover

Victory By Hay Would Place a Wet Presidential Candidate and a Dry Senatorial Candidate on the Democratic Ticket.

Stanford University, Cal., Aug. 8 (AP).—Returns from the primaries in Missouri, one of the border and doubtful states, were carefully scrutinized today by Herbert Hoover in an effort to determine whether they would furnish an index to the result in the national election there in November.

Chief interest of the Republican Presidential candidate centered on the Democratic senatorial race, in which Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, a dry, had rolled up a commanding lead on the early returns over his chief opponent, James A. Collet of Salisbury, a wet, who had the endorsement of Senator James A. Reed.

It is no secret that Republican party leaders would welcome a victory by Hay, as this would place a wet presidential candidate and a dry senatorial candidate on the Democratic ticket in November.

They contend that the dry senatorial candidate could not be in sympathy with the views of Governor Alfred E. Smith on the prohibition issue, and that this would work in favor of the Republican candidates all along the line. Since national issues were not at stake in Kansas, the results of the primaries there carried only passing interest to the G. O. P. chieftains. Anyhow, they are confident that Hoover's running mate, Senator Charles Curtis, is certain to keep that state in line in the general election, as he has been the commanding figure there in politics for many years.

The Republican presidential nominee had few engagements for today, and planned to get as much rest at home as possible, and at the same time to give more thought to the speech he will deliver at West Branch, Iowa, dealing with the farm relief problem, touching primarily upon the indirect rather than the direct methods of handling the agricultural situation.

Successful Fishing Trip.

The nominee was all smiles today over the success of a fishing trip he made yesterday to a lake 20 miles south of this place. He slipped away during the morning hours, and returned in mid-afternoon with his creel fairly well filled, having taken out of the water the legal limit of a catch for one day, ten pounds plus one additional fish.

Thus Hoover discovered that he would have better luck, almost at his back yard, in pursuing the wily trout, than attended his efforts during the long motor trip he made last week with nearly half a hundred friends and newspaper correspondents in the mountains of northern California and southern Oregon.

Consulted on Notification Details.

While general plans for the notification ceremonies here Saturday are in the hands of a committee of Stanford University officials and party leaders, Hoover is consulted regarding some of the details. He has been consulted on some features of the musical program by Professor Ernest W. Martin, director of the Stanford Band, one of those which will furnish music for the occasion.

Hoover has informed the director that "Hail, Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," is one of his favorites. He was approached regarding that because the New York National Guard recently played it for Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate.

"But I won't ask you to play 'Sidewalks of New York,'" the Republican nominee smilingly told the musician.

MOST POWERFUL GASOLINE DISCOVERED

The photograph shows Daniel W. Hoge, chemist, who also found "acres of diamonds" in his own back yard—this time in the form of a gasoline substitute—a powerful new fuel made from vegetable compounds at the cost of a cent and a half per gallon. The new fuel is said to be a third more powerful than high-test gasoline. Hoge is shown regulating the temperature of his back-yard refinery. The discovery is expected to revolutionize the oil industry. Hoge is also shown pouring some of the gas into his machine.

WOMEN DRIVERS MOST RELIABLE

Safety Engineer Resorts to Science for Evidence to Support Idea.

Logic, psychology and science have been commandeered to build up a stronger case for the woman motorist as a more reliable and safer driver than man.

Coming to her defense this time is Robert Clair, safety engineer and chairman of the taxicab and fleet owners' section of the National Safety council. Clair discards as unfair the old arguments that were used to prove the superiority of woman as a driver and resorts to more scientific evidence for the defense.

His case is built up on answers sent in by 100 representative men and the same number of women pleasure car drivers, besides verbal statements from 300 commercial car drivers. Asking them whether they believe the average woman driver is as careful as the average man, he finds that 74 per cent of the men reply "No," while 84 per cent of the women shout back "Yes."

On Woman's Side.

But the word of these men and women isn't the deciding factor for woman's defense. Clair goes to Dr. F. A. Moss, of the department of psychology at George Washington university, who set out to learn which of the sexes responded more quickly to danger signals.

The tests showed that the women students selected for the tests were as reliable as the men, "if not more so." And they were more consistent.

"In concluding his tests," Clair reports, "Doctor Moss stated there is no physical reason why a woman may not drive as well as a man and that he has also found no psychological reason."

But Clair sees the fallacy in exalting women drivers on the basis of accident and license statistics.

Women Drive Less.

"The average woman drives proportionately many fewer miles than the average man," he points out. "Thousands of commercial vehicles roll up tremendous annual totals in mileage—20, 30, even 40,000 miles being common.

"Much of men's driving is necessarily at the hazardous hours of maximum traffic congestion, while women drive, as a rule, exclusively for pleasure, for convenience or for shopping tours.

"Thus not only does the woman spend many fewer hours behind the wheel than the average man, but her mileage figures are substantially lower."

Nevertheless, Clair insists, science and a newer logic prove woman at least is as good a driver as man.

British Building Wider Highways to Help State

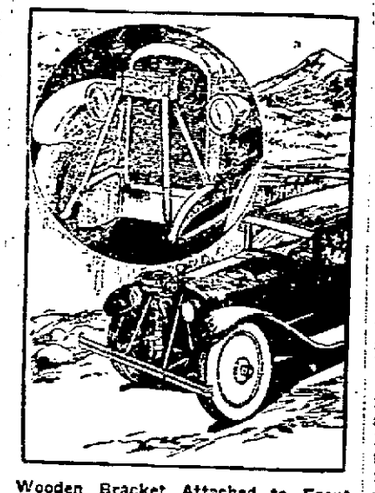
While some of the individual states of this nation have almost as many motor cars as England, the same cannot be said of the development of the system of highways. Although no part of the English road network is designated as a national route, local authorities receive moneys for the movement from the national road fund. In return for this help, the government may acquire a belt of land a quarter of a mile wide along the course of new arterial roads so that the enhanced values developed will benefit the state.

Special Headlight Now Shines Around Curves

Hazards of driving the automobile at night are reduced by a special headlight so adjusted that a wide beam is projected to both sides of the road, without glare to approaching cars and with better illumination of the highways on curves, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The lamp plainly shows the road before the driver turns. It is not intended to take the place of the regular spot or headlights, but for special service on winding roads.

Bracket Holds Outboard Motor on Front of Auto

Many campers pass up the pleasures of an outboard motor because they have no space to carry it. The drawing shows a convenient method of disposing of the motor without sacrificing any space. A wooden bracket is attached to the front end of the car as indicated. A 1 by 7 by 12-inch oak board is supported on ¼ by 1½-inch iron brackets bolted to the frame of the car. Two ¼ by 1½-inch bars extend from the board to the front spring bolts, to give rigidity to the bracket. The length of these bars varies with each particular make of car, but if the top edge of the board is located about 3 inches below the top of the radiator, the height will usually be suitable. The outboard motor is attached to the bracket as indicated, and it will not obstruct the air circulation to any appreciable extent.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.



Wooden Bracket Attached to Front End of Auto Holds Outboard Motor Securely.

Proper Type Spark Plug Vital to Car Efficiency

Informing car owners of the importance of proper type spark plugs in order to obtain the best performance from an automobile, H. Rabezzana, research engineer, says in part:

"When a plug is too short it does not bring the firing points far enough into the combustion chamber. Good ignition under this condition is impossible. The motor is bound to be sluggish and inefficient.

"A plug that is too long extends too far into the firing chamber. This will cause the lower end of the plug to become overheated, resulting in igniting the fuel too early.

"The correct length of plug fits so that the bottom of the spark plug shell is just flush with the inside wall of the cylinder head and the spark gap extends beyond into the combustion chamber.

"To get maximum power and efficiency from an engine it is absolutely necessary that the proper type spark plug be used, as recommended by the manufacturer's spark plug chart."

Will Gene Tunney Marry Heiress?

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Bewildered by a tangled mass of contradictory reports, sportdom figuratively scratched its head today and wondered if contemplated matrimony was the real reason for Gene Tunney's abdication as heavyweight champion of the world.

Printed reports that Tunney soon was to be married to Miss Mary Josephine Rowland Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., daughter of the late George Lauder, Jr., millionaire steel manufacturer and former associate of Andrew Carnegie, came as a surprise to the sport world yesterday. Efforts to obtain denial or confirmation of the rumor from the principals themselves were fruitless.

Miss Lauder and her mother, who are on an auto tour of Maine and Canada, were stopping on the island of South Bristol, Me., last night. Tunney arrived at Bristol during the day and was reported to be visiting the Lauders. In the absence of telephone service from the mainland to the island neither Tunney nor the Lauders could be reached.

Relatives and friends of Miss Lauder, however, quickly denied published reports that Tunney and Miss Lauder would be married next month, either in Scotland or France. The retired heavyweight champion is to leave for a walking tour of Europe on August 16. He will be accompanied by several intimate friends, including Thornton Wilder, the novelist.

Floyd Barbour, secretary to Miss Lauder, pointed out that she would not return from her northern tour until September 10, although he added that she intended to sail for Europe some time next winter.

"These stories are founded on nothing but rumor," he said. "I am not going to say, however, that Miss Lauder will not be married this year. When she does decide to marry, however, it will be announced in the proper manner.

"Mr. Tunney is acquainted with Miss Lauder, just as he is with many persons in Greenwich, Conn. But if one person pays some attention to another that does not mean they are engaged."

Barbour further complicated the situation by admitting that the reports were "on the right track," but failed to explain just what he meant.

Wesley Family

John Wesley, founder of Methodism, was married but he died childless. His brother Charles had eight children, five of whom died in infancy. The only surviving daughter, Sarah, died without marrying. She devoted much of her life to literary pursuits. Charles Wesley, Jr., like his sister, remained single. Their brother Samuel married and had two sons.
